Powers Family Reaches Moscow

Appeal To Khrushchev For Sympathy, Help

MOSCOW (AP) — The frightened, worried and weary family of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers arrived in Moscow Saturday hopeful of seeing him before he goes to trial Wednesday on espionage charges. His father, sobbing, appealed to Premier Nikita Khrushchev "as one father to another" for sympathy and help.

The father and mother of the pilot, downed over Sverdlovsk in the central part of the Soviet Union May 1, arrived first, in the dawn hours. Both were tired and on the verge of tears. The mother is seriously ill with heart trouble.

The pilot's wife, Barbara Moore Powers from Milledgeville, Ga., arrived about 12 hours later, drawn and strained and with bloodshot eyes. She told reporters: "I shall be glad to talk to you later. I am very tired now, and I need a little rest."

Fellow passengers said later she had told them she first hoped to see her husband, then Khrushchev.

The father, Oliver W. Powers, his voice breaking repeatedly, read a statement at a news conference appealing to Khrushchev.

The note was penned on stationery of the British European Airways plane which brought him to Moscow after a stopover in London.

Powers sat in a deep armchair as he read. Before he began, he took a deep breath, looked up at his friend and adviser, Sol W. Cury, and asked in a husky voice, "Do I have to read this?"

After a pause, Powers added: "It's what I made up."

"Mrs. Powers and I have come to the Soviet Union for the sole purpose of doing all that we can to help our son," he read. "I am sure that any other parents would do the same if their boy was in trouble, and I appeal to Mr. Khrushchev as one father to another, for the sake of my boy.

"I understand he lost a son in the war against Nazi Germany, fighting alongside the United States of America for the same

Asks Increase In Insurance For Unemployed

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell called Saturday for larger and longer payments under the federal-state unemployment insurance system.

He timed his call to the system's 25th anniversary. He said it "has made a signal contribution to wage earners and the economy but could make a greater one in the years ahead if prompt action were taken to correct its weaknesses."

Mitchell noted that the program now gives some protection to 45 million workers and has bolstered purchasing power in communities having trouble with unemployment.

But, he said: "There are still 13 million wage earners without unemployment protection."

"The maximum benefit amount provided in most state laws also is still too low to permit the great majority of workers to receive 50 per cent of their usual earnings, as has been repeatedly recommended by President Eisenhower," he added.

The program is financed by a federal payroll tax on employers. States decide the amount of the weekly payments to people who are thrown out of work and the duration of payments.

Nixon Feels To Resume Nuclear Tests Is Mistake

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Vice President Nixon said Saturday night he believed "it would be a mistake" for the United States to resume underground nuclear weapons testing at this time.

He said there still is "a chance" that negotiations between the big powers would be successful and would lead to a test ban with proper inspection arrangements.

Nixon gave his views during a half hour news conference at the close of a busy day during which he participated in the 200th anniversary celebration of Cumberland County.

He was asked about a suggestion that both the presidential candidates, Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), endorse immediate resumption of the underground tests.

While there can be no "indefinite moratorium" on testing, Nixon said, negotiations should continue until there is no longer any hope for agreement.

An agreement for a worldwide ban, accompanied by inspection insurance, he said, could pave the way for "disarmament with inspection."

The vice president expressed hope that Democratic leaders of the Senate would see fit during the present session of Congress to announce the schedule of business about a week in advance.

That, he said, would give all candidates an equal chance to plan their own scheduled and work in short campaign trips when they have a chance.

Nixon came to Maine to woo the five electoral votes of a normally rock-ribbed GOP state.

Ike, Herter Confer Before Ministers Meet

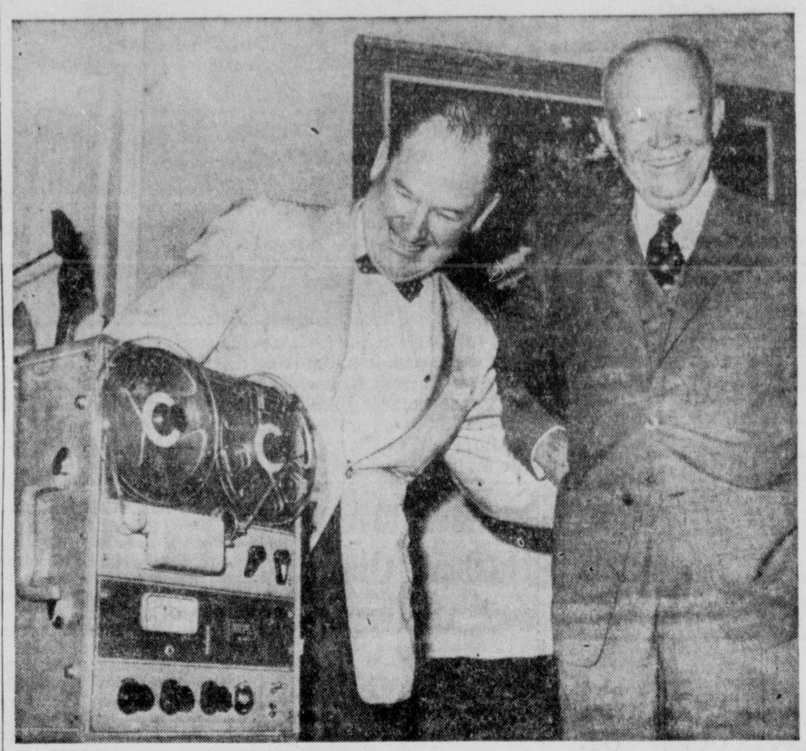
By BEN F. MEYER

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Eisenhower has summoned Secretary of State Christian A. Herter to the White House Monday, a few hours before Herter departs for a conference of hemisphere foreign ministers in San Jose, Costa Rica.

Charges that the Soviet Union and international communism have become an increasing threat to the United States and to hemisphere nations in general, as a result of growing Moscow-Havana friendship, will be studied at the conference.

The threat by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to rain rockets on the United States if the United States abuses Cuba was a major factor in the agreement to call the conference. Another factor was a charge by Venezuela that the Dominican Republic had plotted an attempt to assassinate President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela June 24.

An indication of the importance the Eisenhower government attaches to Communist activities in this hemisphere, with the flowering friendship between the Soviet Union and Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime, is seen in some quarters in the fact that Charles E. Bohlen has been named an adviser on the U. S. delegation to Costa Rica.



HEARS VOICE FROM SPACE — President Eisenhower (right) obviously is delighted as he listens to a recording of his voice as it sounded while it bounced coast to coast from the orbiting Echo I communications satellite. Soviet Official Ousted For Bribing American Citizen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Saturday ordered a high-ranking Soviet diplomat out of the country. It charged that he had paid money to an American citizen to seek employment in the U. S. government.

Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov was told at the State Department that Valentin I. Ivanov, 39, an embassy first secretary, had "grossly violated the established norms of diplomatic behavior."

Leaving the department after a brief meeting with Deputy undersecretary Raymond A. Hare, Menshikov commented to reporters that "the weather is not very pleasant." He did not say whether he referred to the dripping skies, the state of relations between Moscow and Washington, or both.

The expulsion of Ivanov is the latest in a series of accusations and ouster orders involving Soviet and American officials or citizens which symbolize a steady deterioration of relations.

In Moscow in the course of a week the U. S. air attache, Col. Edwin M. Kirton, and two tourists James Shultz and Robert Christner, have been accused of espionage activities and ordered to leave Russia. Last month a Soviet Embassy third secretary, Petr Y. Ezhov was expelled from the United States on the ground that he was working as a spy.

The action against Ivanov, officials said, was not retaliation for the expulsion of Americans from the Soviet Union but a step determined by Ivanov's own behavior.

"Ivanov importuned an American citizen, Roger C. Foss, to obtain employment in a U. S. government agency and gave him substantial sums of money for this purpose," the formal announcement said.

The Washington Post quoted Foss as saying Ivanov wanted him to "infiltrate the government and society."

Hold Services For Five Minesweeper Fire Victims

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — The Navy minesweeper Exultant docked Saturday with the bodies of five crewmen who died in a fire which swept through the engine room Friday night at sea.

Officers and seamen lined the deck at attention while a chaplain read services as the bodies were taken off to waiting ambulances.

The Exultant's skipper, Lt. Cmdr. G. E. McPadden, said fire broke out about 6 p.m. Friday and the crew fought two and a half hours before putting it out. A sister ship, the USS Nimble, assisted.

The names of two of the dead were released by the Atlantic Mine Fleet Base at Charleston. They were:

Michael J. Nemeth, engineman third class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex R. Nemeth of South Bend, Ind.

Jackie W. Byrd, engineman second class, whose wife, Joyce, lives in Charleston. Byrd's former home was Ozark, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. Jules H. Gaignard of Shreveport, La., were notified their son Ensign David Jules Gaignard, 23, was among the dead.

Gaignard, a native of Houston, Tex., was a graduate of Louisiana State University and entered the Navy in August 1959, being stationed in Pensacola, Fla., before assignment to the Exultant.

Later the Navy made known the names of the other dead. They were Thomas S. Baker, engineman second class, whose father, Charles S. Baker, lives on Route 1, New Middleton, Tenn., and William C. Glenn, engineman third class, son of John M. Glenn,, RFD 2, Jeromesville, Ohio.

McPadden said the dead included a chief engineer and four

Powers Will Not Have Right To Appeal Sentence

LONDON (AP)— A leading Soviet lawyer said Saturday night U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers will not have the right to appeal against a sentence for espionage.

But the lawyer told Radio Moscow listeners the American flier will be able to apply for a pardon from the Supreme Soviet.

Powers, shot down over the Soviet Union May 1, goes on trial Wednesday in Moscow on charges of espionage.

The lawyer's remarks, made in answer to questions from an interviewer, were broadcast over Moscow's Home Service. Reception was poor in London and the lawyer's name was not clear although he was described as a leading attorney.

NEGROES PICKET DEPARTMENT STORE IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Placard-carrying Negro youths picketed the downtown store of Scruggs-Vandervoort - Barney Saturday, claiming the department store made a practice of not hiring Negro clerical and sales workers.

The youths were members of the Youth Council of the St. Louis Chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

The president of the youth council, Arthur Shaw, said the protest demonstration would continue every day next week, then every Saturday afterwards.

Shaw, a senior at Vashon High School, said the demonstration was a protest and not a boycott.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea's new president said Saturday he prefers to have his name spelled as he spelled it in his youth abroad, Yun Po-sun. But he told a news conference, he does not object to the spelling Yono Bo-sun, which has been used recently.

Ignore Challenge On Civil Rights

Tuscarora Tribe Ends Fight To Keep Reservation

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)— The Tuscarora Indian nation, the sixth tribe of the once-powerful Iroquois confederacy, officially closed the book this week on its long, strife-marked struggle to keep its land from the New York State Power Authority.

The Tuscaroras' general council voted Friday night to accept an offer of $850,000 for 495 acres of reservation property and an easement on 55 additoinal acres. The land will be used for a water storage reservoir on the 720-million-dollar Niagara power project.

The money amounts to just over $1,540 an acre.

"We do not feel elated," a chief, who asked not to be identified, said Saturday. "We feel we were defrauded by the court. We feel that we cannot depend on the justice of the white man."

At issue in the two-year struggle, which reached the U.S. Supreme Court before the Indians lost, was the right of the Power Authority to condemn Indian land. The Indians claimed their land was protected by treaty and was inviolate unless Congress specifically abrogated the treaty.

The authority said the land was not original reservation land but was purchased by the Indians from private owners and was subject to condemnation for public purpose, as is other private land.

Mother Admits Drugging Young Sleeping Beauties

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mrs. Lillian Fratantonio Saturday night admitted she had given her two daughters sleep-inducing barbiturate drugs, police said. Detective Sgt. Norman Ferris added that the 29-year-old woman said she did not know why she did it, but had intended no harm.

The woman began giving police a statement in her hospital room. The mother had first denied through intensive questioning that she had drugged Bernadette, 3, and Venita, 5.

The girls, awakened at last from their drug-imposed world of sleep, have been made wards of Juvenile Court. The action was taken Friday night after police asked the court to protect the children from any further sleep-inducing drugs, which tests showed had been secretly administered to them. The sisters have been placed in an isolated room at Mount Sinai Hospital with no visitors allowed.

A policewoman was assigned to remain near the mother's room at St. Ann Maternity Hospital, where Mrs. Fratantonio has been since giving birth to a third daughter—her fifth child—last Tuesday.

CLAIRE BLOOM COMPLAINS

BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin police reported Saturday they had a complaint from film star Claire Bloom that a young man grabbed her by the arm and pushed her while she was walking her baby daughter in a park Thursday. She did not complain of being otherwise molested, according to the police report. She is here with her husband, actor Rod Steiger, who is making a picture.

Kennedy, Johnson Asked To Shut Off Filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican senators heckled Democratic presidential and vice presidential candidates about civil rights Saturday.

The Democratic nominees, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, ignored the Republican challenge that they employ drastic tactics to shut off a potential filibuster.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky) led the assault. He proposed that Kennedy and Johnson revive a two-point civil rights bill killed by the Senate Monday on a 54-28 vote that followed party lines closely.

All but four participating Democrats voted to shelve the bill on the grounds that to bring it up would provoke a Southern filibuster and end chances of passing other legislation in a session it is planned to end before Labor Day.

Cooper said the Democrats had "put up a smokescreen that we can't even look at this subject without obstructing the work of the Senate."

Cooper contended that if the Democratic leaders would join in bringing in a cloture petition, a compact civil rights bill could be passed without disrupting the legislative schedule.

Under the cloture procedure, two-thirds of those voting would have to approve to limit talk.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) backed Cooper's proposal. He said that if the Democrats don't pass a bill in this session, their strong platform declaration on civil rights will become "a hollow mockery of partisan pretension."

Javits and Sen. Prescott Bush (R-Conn) said the least the Democrats could do would be to clear the way for passage of the two-point bill.

It would provide for the creation of a commission to supervise equal job opportunities on government contract projects. It also would authoriae federal financing aid for desegregating school districts under the Supreme Court's 1954 decision.

With Kennedy and Johnson ignoring the GOP challenges, Javits announced he had changed his mind about offering civil rights amendments to a pending minimum wage bill sponsored by Kennedy.

"I would not want to embarrass or hamper anything I am so much for," Javits told his colleagues.

Senate Fight Looms Over Bill For Medical Care

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—A blistering Senate battle over medical care for the aged loomed Saturday as the Democratic-controlled Senate Finance Committee approved a program far short of Democratic platform promises. The committee vote was 12-4.

Smiling broadly, Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) announced that six Democrats and all six Republican members had agreed that federal and state governments should share costs of the proposed new aid program.

The committee action was a setback for Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee who had cosponsored plans which were rejected, and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, his vice-presidential running mate who had publicly backed the platform pledges.

The committee proposal is patterned largely after one previously voted by the House which rejected Democratic demands that medical aid be made part of the Social Security system financed by payroll taxes.

Even before Byrd had a chance to explain what was decided at the closed-door session, Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) told newsmen outside, "This is a complete repudiation of the Democratic platform."

"We will carry this fight to the Senate floor," the tall grey-haired Illinois senator said. "The coalition may have won a battle but they have not won a war."

Collision Kills 9, 38 Children Motherless

WILMONT, Minn. (AP) — Five women, mothers of 37 children, returning home from night-shift canning factory jobs, were among nine persons killed Saturday when two cars collided head on along a straight stretch of highway.

A sixth woman, the mother of one child and occupant of the second car also was killed. The husband of one of the canning workers and two men in the second car were the other dead.

There was one survivor. Mrs. Ernie Lueck, 36, of Wilmont, was taken to a Worthington hospital in a serious condition with head and chest injuries.

The crash stunned this small southwestern Minnesota community of about 500.

Dead in the car in which Mrs. Lueck rode were Mrs. John Schroer, 39; Mrs. Larry Bunkers, 43; Mrs. Ted Voss, 48; Mrs. Matt Gerber, 57; and Mrs. John Voss, 38, and her husband, 43.

Victims in the second car were Mrs. James Buckner, 21, Worthington, wife of a serviceman stationed in Germany; Robert Joe Buckman, 21, Sibley, Iowa, and a youth tentatively identified as Jack Clark, about 17, Worthington.

Mrs. Buckner was the mother of a year-old child. Mrs. Gerber had 12 children, 2 of them adopted; Mrs. Schroer, 9, ranging from 3 to 21 years old; Mrs. Bunkers, 3, aged 11 to 17; Mrs. Ted Voss 7, from 7 to 26; and Mrs. John Voss, 6 children, 5 to 17.

Sheriff Harry Nackerud, still investigating the crash, would only say "somebody was on the wrong side of the road" and that high speed apparently figured in the crash. The cars wound up about 300 feet apart in the opposite ditches.

Find Favorable Landing Spots On Moon, But Man Must Act Like Mole

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. experts announced Saturday the finding of half a dozen favorable landing spots on the moon. But they said man would have to behave like a mole to survive there.

The findings were made public by the U. S. Geological Survey and the Army Engineers on completion of what they called the first known geological study compiled from photographs of the moon.

The mission of the engineers and the geologists is to locate the best areas where space vehicles might land and from which earth men could start work on construction of lunar stations.

Col. Leonard L. Haseman of the engineers' Office of Geodesy Intelligence and Mapping said that to survive on the moon "the only way is to go underground, to dig in fast, or get into an old volcanic cavern."

He was supported by Maxim Ellas, military geologist of the U. S. Geological Survey, who said there appear to be violent extremes of temperature on the moon. These range from 214 degrees Fahrenheit in the moon's two-week day to minus 250 degrees Fahrenheit at night or in the deep shadows.

These extremes result from the lack of any atmosphere to blunt the sun's rays.

Haseman said it would not be necessary to dig in very deep but that the explorer would have to be careful not to stick his toe above the surface during daylight because it would be roasted.

The experts, at a Pentagon news conference, indicated several areas they said would be favorable for a soft landing. They pointed to the lowland areas of the craters of Kepler and Copernicus in the lunar province of Imbrium as most favorable.

The study indicated no great accumulation of dust deep enough to bury a space vehicle upon landing. It found no apparent evidence of any substantial radioactivity on the moon's surface.

UN, Belgian Forces Begin Switchover In Katanga

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP) — U. N. forces began taking over police duties from Belgian troops in rebellious Katanga Province Saturday under a formula worked out by U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Hammarskjold worked out procedure for the withdrawal of Belgian troops from independence-minded Katanga as fast as U. N. forces can take over. He talked with Moise Tshombe, President-Premier of Katanga, and the Belgians who have supported the fiery secessionist.

As a first big step, Belgian soldiers will begin pulling back to their bases as more U. N. forces are flown in Monday and Tuesday.

As the first little step, a company of Swedish U. N. troops paraded on the apron in front of the terminal building at Elisabethville Airport. Belgian troops on guard drew up facing the Swedes.

A Swedish officer approached the Belgian commander, informed him of the agreement, and the Belgian saluted. The Belgian ordered his men to withdraw. They marched off, climbed into trucks, and returned to their billets in town.

The airport guard duty was the first U. N. assignment in this provincial capital, but the duties will multiply as more U. N. forces arrive.

Despite the agreement, complete Belgian withdrawal from Katanga and the military bases will take time. And in the Congo capital of Leopoldville Premier Patrice Lumumba showed impatience.

For weeks Lumumba has been insisting the Belgians must quit Katanga at once, accusing them of starting the separationist movement in Katanga in an attempt to dismember the young republic.

Lumumba told reporters Saturday both his army and the various provincial governments were putting pressure on him to march into Katanga if the U. N. does not settle the issue soon. But foreign quarters in the capital did

J. Lee Hopkins, program chairman at the Rotary Club meeting Wednesday night, introduced Jack Schwarte from the Social Security Administration headquarters in Alton, who showed slides depicting the anniversary of Social Security and including the showing of the period of that organization from the beginning until the present time.

Joe Hopkins, a high school student, operated the machine. Following the showing of the slides a question and answer period was held.

Rotarian Eldon Oyler, Jacksonville, was a guest.

Carl McAdams, president of the local club, called a board meeting which was held following the regular session.

Ward K. Ballard, who has been a patient at Passavant hospital, Jacksonville, for over five weeks, expects to undergo surgery again the last of this week.

Mrs. Francis Anderson, White Hall, a teacher in the local elementary schools for a number of years, entertained the primary and intermediate grade teachers of the Washington School, at a ten o'clock coffee held at her home Thursday morning. Mrs. Anderson resigned her position in the Roodhouse schools to accept a similar one in the White Hall schools. Her guests surprised her with a shower of farewell gifts on their arrival at her home.

Served by Mrs. Anderson were fruit cocktails, assorted breakfast rolls and coffee. Each guest was presented with a mum corsage. Attending were Mesdames Margaret Sullivan, Buell Cuddy, Lloyd Smith, Harvey Wheeler, Charles Barlow and Miss Mabel Hopkins, Roodhouse and Mrs. Kermit Fansler, White Hall.

SLIGHT MISUNDERSTANDING

LAWRENCEBURG, Ind. (AP) — A father decided to check his son's report that the boy's teacher threatened to "throw me in the furnace" if he didn't behave in class. It turned out the teacher had threatened to "drop him from the register"—the academic register, that is.

Liberian Visits Ashland; Lauds Friendliness

ASHLAND—In a three-day visit to Ashland, D. Caesar Harris, assistant secretary of defense, Liberia, learned much about the friendliness of people in a small town. When a business man returned a bill marked "No Charge" for services rendered to Harris, he remarked, "This could happen only in a small town."

He was greatly impressed by the kind thoughtfulness of a woman who gave him a year's subscription to a magazine he seemed to enjoy. As Harris boarded his plane for Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles, he said, "I shall always have a deep affection for Ashland and its people. I have learned much about the American way of life."

Ashland also learned much from Harris about his country. Liberia has developed tremendously, in the last 15 years, under the leadership of President Tubman who believes that the education of his people is imperative. At the present time there are 241 Liberians studying in the United States and over 80 in Canada and the United Kingdom.

Harris pointed out that the Belgians' failure to sufficiently educate the Congolese prior to their independence has been a source of trouble there.

Tune In Here For Another Episode In The Life Of Andre & Gamble

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

MONTCLAIR, N. J. —(NEA)— And now (MUSIC) another chapter in the heart-warming (CRICKET CHIRPS) true-life story of that typical suburban couple (BIRD CALLS) — The Porumbeanus.

In our last exciting episode, Andre and Gamble had just eluded Granny Benedict and the authorities to get married in North Carolina, attended only by Life Magazine. And today, as we peep in on them, they are at the end of the rainbow in their room at a residence hotel in Montclair, N. J.

"We left a false trail," Andre is saying through a heartwarming chuckle, "because we wanted to give Life Magazine the exclusive coverage. We had sounded out various outfits and found that Life was willing to make the best financial arrangement."

Gamble smiles at her handsome husband and lovingly takes a partially-smoked cigarette from his fingers.

"It was all worth it," she says lovingly. "We are going to have a baby in February and we are terribly happy."

Andre nods lovingly. "Slowly but surely we are winning all our legal battles. Our case will soon come to court and we shall ask Mrs. Benedict to account for how she has handled her husband's estate since 1935 when he died leaving no will."

* * *

Gamble's face clouds for a moment. You know," she says darkly, "it is degrading to fight in the courts to get your clothes. The press made so much over that. And all those columnists who kept writing that we were doing things and going places that we weren't at all."

Andre chuckles. "Nonsense, my dear," he says with understanding, "those items were merely handed in by press agents who were trying to use our publicity to plant their own plugs.

ANDRE AND GAMBIE: Togetherness.

"As I was saying, when our case comes to court and Mrs. Benedict says there is—let's say—a million in Gamble's estate, we will simply say why isn't it X-millions? And that way the burden of proof is on her."

Gamble is also disappointed that the public has been led to believe that Andre is a chauffeur who has led her astray.

"He is not a chauffeur," she says angrily. It was a lie, she says, concocted to put her in the custody of a New York court, keep her from marrying him, prevent her from getting a passport. Under the law, she still is in custody.

"But it is nice here in New Jersey," Andre says reassuringly. "We do not have to go into New York for anything. Our lawyers will appear at the trial over the estate.

"And the people in Montclair are very nice and well-mannered. They do not ask personal questions. And only the teenagers ask for our autographs.

"So while we are waiting here, I have taken the position of director of sales promotion for a foreign car and the group we move in is the upper income obviously—naturally the group who would buy those cars."

But is there more trouble in store for Andre and Gambie?

Will they be invited to join the better clubs in Montclair? Does their popularity with the teenagers count against them as certain hostesses suggest? Will Gambie ever be able to get back into New York City?

And who will buy a car from Andre? Would you?

Institute Reports Good Taste Requires Stamp Of Approval

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK —(NEA)— After only six months in existence, the American Institute of Approval, Inc., appears to be just what this country needed all along.

Business is so good that the Institute has had to triple in size. And while executive director Lady Malcom Douglas-Hamilton has been heartwarmed and gratified by these signs of success, she has not been surprised because "basically the American people want this kind of approval."

For in these alien times when some morticians give green stamps and the biggest difference between competitive products is packaging, the American Institute of Approval has taken on the non-profit responsibility of promoting good taste by saying what is and—if they follow a suggestion now before the board—what is not in good taste.

But actually, the Institute was formed in the interest of world harmony.

As an American living abroad, who married into a titled family, Lady Douglas-Hamilton found that the British had not changed their low estimate of American taste since 1776. And since she founded the World War II "Bundles for Britain" program, she resolved to ease the tense situation.

* * *

Luckily, Lord Douglas-Hamilton always wanted to live in the U.S. Consequently she was able to begin almost at once.

"I discovered," she said, "that Americans are vitally interested in good taste and often ask shopkeepers and salesmen to point out the item in the best taste.

"So why not set up a panel of experts who would make the choice in the first place and save everybody time and trouble?"

As things turned out, it was more than an institute, more than a panel or a board of experts. It was Armageddon in the parlor. Not since the Vandals sacked Rome 15 centuries ago had so potent a force of consumer preference been assembled.

The list of the Institute's members reads like a directory of the stock exchange, telephone exchange and prisoner exchange at the Battle of Hastings. There are IIs and IIIs and titles and—in the best taste of all—only one motion picture actress.

* * *

"That is the whole thing," Lady Douglas-Hamilton said. "We are representative of top purchasing taste. We are able to buy just about anything.

"We have spent almost all our lives thinking about household furnishings and culture, art and good taste. So you see: we really care."

For a fee of about $1,200 any manufacturer can come with his wares to the Institute, get the expert opinion and—if he has anything that falls in the narrow confines of good taste—

"Let me assure you, madam—this coat in the worst possible taste. There isn't another like it in the whole county."

nia of Approval on the price tag.

For most manufacturers, it is a good deal. Where else could he get a nod from the nation's Four Hundred at the ridiculously low price of $3 per head?

For the Four Hundred it's equally effective. For the first time in three generations, Newport has been able to snap back at Asbury Park. For the newly-rich it's a welcome trail out of the woods of self-expression.

And for the average housewife it's a big sigh of relief. After all these years of tedious decision-making about her decor, she can finally rely on her first choice—that roll of wallpaper over there. The one without the little approval sticker on the price tag.

So residents spent a week this year with appropriate celebrati' of the town's 251st birthday.

1961's Fashion Line Sticks Close To You

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS —(NEA)— The French fashion creators have sent their 1961 silhouette rocketing into space.

Within a few weeks, they'll know if they're on target. That will be when Paris imports reach stores in America.

This is the year of the natural body line, feminine and supple. There are a few switches, of course, but by and large we gals are allowed some curves here and there. Hemlines are up to the knees at Dior, down to calf top at Cardin. Take your choice or pick any point in between.

The basic silhouette is a princess dress which runs straight from the neckline, ignoring the bosom, almost by-passing the waist, touching the hips and ending in whimsy at the hem. "Whimsy" means a pleated or gathered flounce, a two-foot bubble, a scalloped hem, a band of fur, braiding or embroidery.

Day dresess are pruned down to the point where many are minus sleeves. Necklines are plain, high, rounded, oval or finished off with a scarf knotted at one side.

For coats, there are enormous collars reaching up to the ears. Outside buttons, nearly as large as small saucers, are used for the new side-fastenings.

The 1930 influence is more talk than reality. There won't be any diving into Auntie Mame's wardrobe trunk to fish out a 1930 Patou number with the notion that it will look like 1960. The differences between 1930 and 1960 lie in a new technique of cut and the 1960 underpinnings. There is a world of difference.

New suit jackets are short and lightly fitted. Some are straight and flat at the front and others boast side closings. Side-wrapped skirts are used for both suits and daytime dresses.

Coats, suits and dresses have one important point in common: they are knee-deep and often neck-deep in fur. Luxury furs as well as the lesser furs are used in all collections. Furs featured include mink, fox, chinchilla, sable, leopard, lamb, lynx and broadtail.

For evening the billowing ballgown has finally gone. Instead, there are semi-full or really slinky numbers, some with embroidered bodices or super-wide stoles. There are lots of clinging "femme fatale" dresses with daring necklines.

Models with closely-shingled heads wore jeweled bands on same. Some had long rope necklaces with large beads, dangling earrings and jeweled slippers. The 1961 Paris collections have the 1920's meeting the 1930's head-on.

Popcorn Poll To Be Used As 1960 Political Barometer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Now that the presidential campaign is building up, the popcorn eater will once more be tapped as a political barometer.

Almost every time he buys a bag or a box, the popcorn muncher will be registering his choice for president. According to popcorn manufacturer Jim Blevins, who originated the gimmick in 1948, that means 35 million "votes."

In 1948 when professional pollsters and just about everyone else picked Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to defeat President Harry S. Truman, Blevins' popcorn poll indicated a Truman victory. In 1952 his poll accurately predicted the returns from all but one of the 48 states. In 1956, 25 million popcorn eaters called the election result right on the nose.

Blevins, who peddles popcorn around the world from his Popcorn Village headquarters at Nashville and plants at Ridgeway, Ill., and North Bend, Neb., is sailing into this year's presidential poll with elaborate plans.

Here's how it works. Every time the muncher buys a box or bag of popcorn he'll have a chance to pick a red, white and blue container emblazoned with the names of either the Republican or Democratic candidates for president and vice president. Most of the sales are in movie theaters. This year the poll is being extended to supermarkets and state fairs.

Tabulations of the results will go up outside the local theaters. They are also forwarded to Blevins' headquarters for auditing.

Popcorn Village, which will have about 20 girls compiling poll results, will issue its first national poll result by Sept. 1. Five other reports will follow, with the last Nov. 1.

What about the huge number of children or persons under voting age who buy popcorn? They reflect the thinking at home, Blevins says.

Political neutrals or those reluctant to commit themselves? They are extremely rare, he says, but plain boxes are provided, just in case.

The purpose of the gimmick is a reminder to vote. Blevins feels it is effective. What makes him just as happy is his theory that registering a vote in the poll supplies an impulse to buy. He expects popcorn sales during August, September and October to increase 25 per cent.

The 1960 football season will mark the 70th year Columbia University has fielded a football team.

So Goes The Congo, So Goes Christians' Mission In Africa

IN HAPPIER TIMES—Maryknoll Sisters leave N.Y. for Africa.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The immediate future of Christianity in Africa may hinge on Congo government action.

U.S. Protestant and Catholic missionaries are keeping alive plans for expansion made before the former Belgian colony gained independence, precipitating violence and an international crisis.

They expect to renew their efforts in this land which Christianity has found to be one of its best breeding grounds for propagation of the faith on the African continent.

But Dr. Homer Jack, associate director of the American Committee on Africa, who has talked to Congolese leaders, warns of new hurdles. Says Jack:

"The Congo is likely to lay new ground rules for missionary work after its more pressing problems are considered."

* * *

Should this happen, Christianity may face a setback comparable to the one it got in India when that nation gained independence. Dr. Jack says. There, Prime Minister Nehru led a legislative movement curtailing Christian "encroachment" in the predominantly Hindu nation.

If the Congo takes this step, it probably will be followed by some other African nations gaining independence, Dr. Jack reports.

Rev. Theodore Tucker, director of the African committee for the Protestant National Council of Churches, has hopes that Christianity will suffer no setback in Africa because of present or future political turmoil. He says:

"In the past we have had pretty free movement. We see no reason to suppose that African nations gaining independence will be any more or less stringent than those lands were in the past."

About 900, of more than 1,000 U.S. Protestant missionaries affiliated with Council churches, have left the Congo during the present crisis, Dr. Tucker reports. But he is hopeful because:

"One American missionary reported President Kasavubu (trained in Catholic schools) as saying, 'Be sure the missionaries who come back will stand by us.'" The key words, to Dr. Tucker, are "come back."

* * *

The Mission Secretariat of the National Catholic Welfare Conference says that its missionary force is standing fast. While there was only one U.S. priest and a brother in the Congo, there are hundreds of others from European nations, including nearly 400 native Congolese clergymen.

For both Catholics and Protestants, the Congo has been a stronghold for missionary work; in some ways, it could be considered the hub of Christianity in Africa.

The Catholics report more than 4½ million have been baptized there in the population of some 13 million. Congo Catholics represent almost 20 per cent of the faith on the continent.

U.S. Protestant Council mission work is concentrated there. While the many Protestant sects generally cooperate and are usually assigned by a coordinating body to various locations (Methodists to Liberia and Mozambique, United Presbyterians to the Cameroons, etc.), most of them overlap in the Congo.

In all of Africa, approximate figures indicate that of 225 million people, 25 million are Catholic, some 15 million Protestant, primarily concentrated below the overwhelmingly Moslem North African states.

So Christianity recognizes that the Congo could be a turning point in the future status of African missionary work. Dr. Jack says:

"Right now, Christianity, for the most part, is considered neutral in the African political struggle. There is a plus factor—Christian leaders have spoken out for African freedom—and a minus factor—the Bible still is associated with the colonial 'sword' in many parts of Africa.

"Rest assured, Christianity has a permanent foothold in Africa. But how much farther it will go will depend on how its leaders regard the swing toward inpendendence."

Scientist Studies Hurricanes By Flying Through Them

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — "Hurricanes," observes a lanky young scientist who flies into the eye of such storms, "hurricanes are as individual as the girls they are named after.

"Yet, like girls, they are all similar."

The great problem is hurricanes are unpredictable, "but now we are beginning at least to know what a hurricane is," said Dr. N. E. Laseur, professor of meteorology at Florida State University.

Dr. Laseur has flown into hurricane eyes more than 30 times in participating in the National Hurricane Research Project, directed by the Weather Bureau in Miami. Florida State is one of four universities cooperating in the project.

Daring flights into the center of hurricanes began in 1943 with a flight by Col. Joseph B. Duckworth of the Army Air Corps. A year or two later, Navy and Air Force planes were making routine reconnaissance flights to locate and warn of hurricanes, and try to track them. Meteorologists rode in, too, seeking basic knowledge about these vicious storms.

Boring in and through by airplane has greatly advanced understanding of hurricanes, Dr. Laseur adds, especially since development of improved instruments to measure wind, ground and air speeds, better navigational equipment, recording and photographic equipment, and radar.

The research project now is leasing two DC's and a B57 from the Air Force for specially instrumented hurricane and related weather research.

Air Force and Navy pilots and crews and scientists now have made scores of penetrations into hurricanes. It is hazardous business. One hurricane plane has been lost in the Atlantic, and half a dozen in the Pacific.

It is near the eye, around which a wall of clouds rises to as high as 10 miles, that almost all of the energy of the storm is generated. Yet the eye covers only about two per cent of all the area of the great storm.

The ring of cloud around the eye is somewhat like a circular thunderstorm, 15 to 40 miles in diameter. Lightning and thunder flash and roar.

Air is sucked in, rises as in a chimney, and flows out. The hurricane is driven by tremendous amounts of heat generated as water condenses while rising in the wall of cloud.

The storm's energy is equal to that of several A-bombs exploding every second.

"Trying to break this process up by exploding an H-bomb would be like a flea biting an elephant," Dr. Laseur continues.

Weather satellites circling the earth could help locate cloud patterns, or be helpful in tracking a known hurricane, he says.

But the trouble is that, so far, even continuous tracking, by airplane or other means, doesn't tell you where the hurricane is going to go eventually. Too little is known about weather in general and all the forces involved in hurricanes. These storms are "symptoms of the entire atmosphere, and the circulation over the Northern Hemisphere."

From 1900 through the 1930's, there were relatively fewer hurricanes than in more recent years. Recently they have stayed out in the Atlantic, or struck into the United States from the Carolinas to New England. Before that, they rolled across the Gulf and Florida.

Crucially needed is information about the birth of hurricanes, and how and why they start. Increased research eventually might lead to methods of predicting the storms.

With Plenty Of Tourists About

Nessie The Monster Is Back In The Swim

By TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON —(NEA)— Nessie, the Loch Ness monster, has reared her fascinating head again while American tourists are flocking to Scotland.

The monster with the six-foot neck and headlamp eyes has been turning up regularly ever since she was first discovered 27 years ago. Usually her appearances coincide with what is known here as the "silly season," when newspapers are short of copy and the Scots are short of American dollars. But this time she has been filmed.

Those who have seen this remarkable film made by Timothy Dinsdale, a 36-year-old aeronautical engineer, say something funny was going on in the depths of Loch Ness while Dinsdale held the camera to his eye.

The "thing" on celluloid first appears as a triangular hump above the water not unlike a submarine snorkel. It is motionless, with no head or neck visible.

Suddenly ripples appear and it begins to move, faster than the motorboat which chased it. Dinsdale, who first saw it with binoculars at 1,300 yards, says that it was reddish-brown in color with darker splotches.

• • •

Dinsdale, a former Royal Air Force pilot, discounts the usual theories that the phenomenon was a shoal of eels or a midget submarine. "It was definitely a living animal, and it was between 40 and 50 feet long," he says.

Dinsdale admits that he read up on Loch Ness lore before stalking Nessie with his telescope movie camera, and that he had made a drawing of the monster from eye-witness accounts. Certainly, he seems to have known just where and when to rendezvous with Nessie.

John Rankin, a Labor Member of Parliament from Glasgow, earlier this year predicted that Nessie would soon be surfacing again, and that this time she might be accompanied by others.

• • •

Nessie was first sighted in 1933, and since then over 2,000 people, many of them sober, claim to have seen her.

All agree that she is about 40 feet long with a long neck that swivels from side to side, a barrel chest, humps on her back, four flippers and a tail. Some claim that she has nostrils on top of her head like the blow-hole of a whale.

Ever since a local circus offered $90,000 for the capture of Nessie dead or alive, diving enthusiasts have been combing Loch Ness in search of her.

But recent plans to track Nessie in teams with Bren guns and even bombs have brought protests from the Scottish Tourist Board and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Nessie has one serious champion in Dr. Maurice Burton, deputy keeper of zoology at the British Museum. He believes that Nessie may well be a survivor of the pre-historic plesiosaur, a water-living reptile thought to be extinct.

Although the age or reptiles ended 70 million years ago, Burton thinks that the geographic and climatic conditions of Loch Ness might be such as to preserve the plesiosaur.

Franklin Area Schools Will Open August 29

FRANKLIN— The schools of Community Unit No. 1, composed of the Alexander, Franklin and Nortonville communities, will open Monday, Aug. 29. The elementary students at Franklin and at Alexander will register, pay book rentals, and complete insurance forms on this day.

There will be no bus service for the elementary students as they will be registering from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. The high school will be in session all day Monday, Aug. 29. School will take up at 8:40 a.m. and will be dismissed at 3:30 p.m.

There will be regular bus service for the high school students, and lunch will be served in the school cafeteria.

The unit school faculty is complete. There are just two changes in the entire school personnel.

Miss Florence Coleman, who taught the 5th grade at the Franklin grade school last year, has been granted a year's leave of absence to enable her to earn her Bachelor's degree. Mrs. Mary Ellen English of RFD Murrayville has been hired to teach the 5th grade.

The other change is the resignation of Mrs. June Jockisch, 5th and 6th grade teacher at Alexander. Mrs. Bonnie Howard of Jacksonville has been hired to fill this vacancy.

The old gymnasium at the high school is being converted into a school cafeteria, and the room that has been used as the cafeteria for the past several years is being converted into two primary rooms. The kitchen in the converted cafeteria is located in the west end of the old gym.

The 1960-61 school calendar provides for 178 actual school days in addition to the following dismissals: Labor Day, Sept. 5; County institute, Oct. 20; Illinois Education Association at Springfield, Oct. 21; Veteran's day, Nov. 11; Thanksgiving vacation, Nov. 24 and 25; Christmas vacation, Dec. 23 to Jan. 1 inclusive; Easter vacation, March 31 to April 9 inclusive.

The purpose of the long Easter vacation is to provide days in the school calendar to be used as "make up" days in the event that school has to be dismissed during the year on account of bad weather or roads.

ELLECTIVE TREE CLEARER

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—The Naval Aviation Facilities Experimental Center here was faced with quite a problem—how to clear its grounds of trees while keeping the roots for drainage and anti-erosion purposes.

To solve the problem, a huge tree-crushing machine was brought from Texas. It took eight railroad cars to carry the 165- ton machine and six days to assemble it.

As it moves along at 10 miles per hour, its steel teeth mounted on 40-ton rollers chew through all sizes of trees, clearing as much as 35 to 40 acres in a day.

And in case the machine gets bogged down in a swamp, a converted Sherman tank stands by to haul it free.

National Foundation Holds Annual Meeting

Members of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis met at the Dunlap Hotel Tuesday evening for election of officers and preliminary review of the forthcoming January campaign for funds.

Harris Rowe, chairman of the Morgan County chapter, opened the meeting with a financial report of the previous campaign and introduced those present. Andy Glosecki, state representative of the national foundation, explained several aspects of the expanded program of basic research being conducted by the organization. The national foundation is presently seeking causes of arthritis and birth defects as well as conducting additional intensive research on polio.

Glosecki explained that much of the basic research of the three diseases are closely related, but even though the Salk vaccine has cut the incidence of polio the threat is ever present. The highest incidence of crippling polio is between the ages of one and five years.

Officers re-elected for the ensuing year were Harris Rowe, chairman; Cloyd DeFrates, vice chairman; Mrs. Helen Sweeney, secretary; Ralph Thomson, treasurer, and Dr. Garm Norbury, medical adviser.

Those present at the meeting were Harris Rowe, Cloyd DeFrates, Jack Mathews, Mrs. Ray McKinley, Mrs. Keith Schuman, Mrs. Louise Schanbacher, Mrs. Flonnie Kirk, Miss Josephine Milligan, John B. Martin, Robert Manlove and Owen Nunes.

Teacher Is Daughter Of Police Captain

Another newcomer to the teaching staff of School District No. 117 is Miss Lucille Wetherell of Ottawa, Ill. Although she was born in Lake City, Iowa, she has spent most of her life in Ottawa where her father is captain on the police force.

She attended the Jefferson elementary school in Ottawa and the Ottawa Township high school from which she graduated in 1956 in the upper one sixth of her class.

MISS JOAN WETHERELL

Miss Wetherell then attended Illinois State Normal University four years where she majored in elementary education. Her work there included courses in reading, English, arithmetic, social studies, science, art, music, speech, and physical education and health. She graduated from I.S.N.U. in June, 1960 when she received the degree Bachelor of Science in Education.

While in high school and again in I.S.N.U., Miss Wetherell has been active in various music groups, both vocal and instrumental, and student government activities. She has worked with 4-H and Camp Fire Girls and is a member of Job's Daughters. At I.S.N.U. she earned membership in both Kappa Delta Epsilon (an honorary education sorority) and in Gamma Theta Upsilon (an honorary geography fraternity).

This will be Miss Wetherell's first year of teaching. She will assume her teaching duties for the first time when she meets with the other new staff members on Aug. 29 for two days of preliminary orientation and discussion. She will teach fourth grade in the Lincoln elementary school.

Kennedy Joins Wife, Daughter In Newport, R.I.

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee, flew here unannounced Saturday night to join his wife and daughter at the home of his mother-in-law.

Kennedy left Washington late in the day after an all-day Senate session on his $1.25 minimum wage proposal. He left the chamber at the close of the day's proceedings and went directly to the airport, his office said.

On hand to meet Kennedy were his wife, Jacqueline, and daughter, Caroline, 2½. The trio went immediately to Hammersmith Farm, home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss.

Airport sources said the senator told them he plans to leave here at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Kennedy has a speech scheduled at Hyde Park, N.Y., Sunday at a meeting of older citizens gathered to observe the 25th anniversary of the Social Security system. He also plans to keep an appointment with Eleanor Roosevelt at her residence there.

WINS BY A NOSE

NEW DELHI (AP)— An Indian alderman has come to the rescue of some girls who, he said, were being sniffed right out of matrimony.

Ganpat Ram Vaid opposed a move to shift a city slaughterhouse to the suburban village of Badli. He pointed out that Badli already has a public dumping ground—a bad smell—and a surplus of unmarried girls.

Vaid said the dump, the smell and the lack of bridegrooms were all connected. He claimed that young men who came courting at Badli were likely to be repelled, and demanded:

"Must we further reduce the matrimonial prospects of the girls of Badli?"

Other members of the Delhi Municipal Committee agreed they shouldn't.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made its best weekly advance since June this week as stocks moved steadily and cautiously higher over a broad front.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose every day and finished at its highest level in a month by gaining 4.30 to 219.70. This compared with a loss of 0.70 last week and a whopping gain of 8.20 in the week ended June 11. Based on the gain in the average, an estimated $5,800,000,000 was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

A more impressive statistic was the total of 1,025 gainers, against only 237 losers, among 1,431 issues traded.

Brokers worried over the market's "leadership," noting that the daily list of 15 most active stocks contained as few as two recognized "blue chip" issues. They liked the way the list acted, however, in the face of the uncertain near-term business outlook and the tense international situation.

They also were cheered by the increase in trading volume, which rose to 14,699,940 shares from 12,843,000 last week and was the highest turnover since the week ended July 2.

Chart followers placed significance in the seven straight gains after the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell close to the 600 "support" level a week ago Thursday. The average rebounded that day, passed the previous rally peak this past Thursday and kept on climbing Friday. For the week it was up 11.89 at 626.18.

Two credit-easing moves by the Federal Reserve Board were cited as factors behind the week's advance. The board first lowered commercial banks' reserve requirements, thereby adding to their lending power. Later it approved a lower discount rate (the interest member banks must pay when they borrow from the reserve system) in four of the 12 federal reserve districts. Other districts were expected to fall in line.

The two moves are designed to provide lower borrowing costs for business, consumers and government bodies. The only trouble is, lower rates won't mean much if there is little demand for credit.

Some Wall Streeters thought the moves by the "fed" were bearish signals, on the theory that government money managers must be worried about business.

The most active on the American Stock Exchange was Nuclear Corp. of America, up ⅞ at 4¾ on 245,500.

Two potent injections of credit easing medicine failed to stir the Treasury bond market from summer lethargy this week. Despite a moderate rise Friday, prices declined as much as 1⅛ of a point.

However, corporates rose for the fifth time in six weeks. All domestic components of the AP bond index closed at weekly 1960 highs.

Helped by Monday's session, which was the most active in six weeks, volume on the New York Stock Exchange inched ahead to $24,655,000 par value from $24,032,100 last week. A year ago trading totaled $30,325,200.

The Treasury decline was the second in a row following a five week march to the highest price levels in almost two years. Actually, three sessions ended lower and two higher but Friday's gain of up to ½ point was the only substantial advance.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — The first broad setback in several weeks left the butcher hog market 50 to 75 cents a hundredweight lower this week with most of the decline on weights under 230 lbs.

On Friday, the top price had slipped to $17.75, the lowest peak since June 24. The week's supply of 28,500 head was up 5,000 from the previous week. Offerings on the 12 major markets increased 7 per cent.

Prices here were lower on four of the five trading days with shipper demand generally slow.

The cattle run was 15 per cent larger than a week ago and for the 12 major markets it was up 10 per cent, both the largest since the middle of July.

Prices were as much as $1 lower on some choice and prime grades over 1,400 lbs but weights under 1,300 lbs were 25 to 50 cents lower.

The top of $27.50 on Wednesday for 1,395 lb high choice and prime grade was the lowest Wednesday peak in almost three years.

GRAIN FUTURES FOLLOW GENERAL DOWNWARD TREND

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices followed a general downward trend this week which gathered speed after release of the government's August crop report on Wednesday.

The report, a little more bearish than expected in the grains, set off liquidation which became brisk at times and made the short side of the market rather unattractive for the time being in the feed grains.

The entire list finished below the closes of a week ago with wheat showing the best resistance. Most of those deliveries were off fractions of a cent while corn and oats were down a cent or more and rye and soybeans down two cents or more.

The report created the greatest stir in the soybean pit where prices leaped to new highs for the season at the opening of trading on Thursday. However, profit takers jumped on the bulge and prices began retreating. The slide continued through Friday with setbacks running to about three cents in spots for the two days.

While the government soybean outlook was the most bullish of the year, there were indications that it still was above ideas held by many traders. It predicted a yield of about 548 million bushels whereas there had been some expectation that the figure might be as low as 542 million even with the increased acreage this year. Last year's production was about 538 million.

The government estimate that both wheat and corn production will be the second largest of record confirmed some earlier private reports. Thus, the figures merely had the effect of discouraging trade from the short side of the market rather than starting a heavy selloff.

Liquidation in those grains was described as not more than moderate, probably because speculators had awaited the report on small commitments generally.

At the end of the week, wheat was ⅞-1⅛ cents a bushel lower, September $1.85⅞; corn 1¼-1½ lower, September $1.14¾-⅞; oats 1-1¼ lower, September 66-66⅛; rye 2-2½ lower, September $1.15⅛-¼; soybeans 2¼-2⅜ lower, September $2.15⅜.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) —Little Roberta Hiltabrand of Ottawa, smallest of three "little women" finalists, showed the grand champion steer Saturday in the Illinois State Fair junior department.

Roberta, 13, won in the unprecedented all-girl finale when the judge, Dr. O. Burr Ross, slapped the rump of her shorthorn, Monitor's Pride, in the second day of the 10 - day agricultural show.

The 108-pound Roberta had pushed and preened her 930-pound strawberry roan animal to the top of a field of 263 steers which Ross classed among the best he'd seen.

Roberta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hiltabrand, was given the nod over Joyce Bauman, 15, of Eureka, whose 880-pound black Angus, Mickey, was picked reserve grand champion.

The other girl with an animal among the finalists was Linda Sperry, 19, of Macomb. Her halfton steer, Oscar, was judged the champion Hereford.

R. O. Lyon, superintendent of the junior department and a fair official for 14 years, said he could not recall another time when three girls had finalist steers competing in the junior show.

Another girl who showed last year's junior department champion and went on to win the adult title too — Barbara Calusen, 18, of Manito — was one of the first to shake Roberta's hand.

Roberta's brown eyes glistened at the sight of the four rosettes and the big silver meat and vegetable tray she won. She shook her ponytail at the tray and said, "I'll never use it."

Lumumba also said that Hammarskjold had returned from New York and flown off to Elisabethville to see Tshombe without consulting the Congo government. He objected to white troops in Katanga, saying African troops are "completely capable of carrying out the United Nations' mission in Katanga."

There are 4,000 Belgian troops still in Katanga Province, about half of them at Kamina. There also are about 1,500 Belgian troops at Kitona, a lower Congo naval base southwst of Leopoldville. At the height of the crisis, Belgium had 10,500 troops in the Congo.

McPadden, who said an investgigation will begin immediately, refused further comment on the fire. Officers and crewmen declined to discuss the tragedy.

It was first reported the Exultant, one day out of its home base at Charleston, S. C., had an explosion.

However, a Navy spokesman at the Charleston Mineforce Base said earlier there was no explosion, only the fire. The ship was about 70 miles southeast of Savannah, he said, when fire burst out, reportedly from diesel oil spurting from a ruptured fuel line. He said the engine room was extensively damaged. The only outward evidence of damage was a seard smokestack.

Foss, 32, is a self-styled member of the American Nazi party who, in the published accounts, claimed to have received a total of $500 from Ivanov between the fall of 1959 and June 14.

Concurrent with the Ivanov ouster, the State Department reported also the barring of the Hungarian Legation's military attache from Washington and the expulsion of the U. S. military attache from Budapest. The news of this development had broken earlier in the day from Budapest.

CHICAGO — (NEA) — Never was there a gathering of the football clans like the one for the College All-Star Game on the Chicago lakefront. It gets bigger and there is more to talk about every mid-August.

And what is more natural in the setting than an early preview of the Western Conference race? Frank Buck couldn't bring the Big Ten back to life in one year after the deep blue hue Washington hung around it in the Pasadena Rose Bowl last New Year's Day. But one misadventure doesn't necessarily mean you're out for this rock-ribbed old league either.

What Wisconsin couldn't do to the Huskies in last year's Rose Bowl very well could have been accomplished by Illinois, which everybody admits now but nobody would admit then, was the Big Ten's top team.

The Illini aren't a whit worse either with the advent of Pete Elliott. Fresh from California, personable Pete inherits an armada of talent and none of the hypocrasies that hamstrung the Golden Bears in the degenerated and defunct Pacific Coast Conference.

* * *

MICHIGAN STATE SEEMS to be the outfit most likely to give Illinois the strongest argument. Duffy Daugherty lost the extraordinary Blanche Martin and Dean Look, the quarterback around whom he designed last fall's offense. But the irrepressible Duffy still has more accomplished halfbacks than he has good stories and a line second only to that of Illinois in bulk and experience. He may also have the slickest sophomore outfit.

Northwestern, which has been struggling for the limelight, could go all the way with a modicum of the luck Ara Parseghian has lacked the past two campaigns. The Wildcats have quality stuff, but not enough of it, particularly with the relaxed substitution rules that now give character builders vastly more freedom.

Purdue, which has come closer than any other school to scaling the heights of late, still wants sorely for the standard halfback to remove the shackles which spell an average season.

* * *

KAYE KESSLER, EMINENT pigskin pundit of the Columbus Citizen-Journal, reports that Ohio State is in much the same boat that Purdue finds itself. Woody Hayes doesn't have the halfback threat to take some of the pressure off his grind-it-out power.

Iowa offers a contrast in that the Hawkeyes have backs to make Forest Evashevski's wing-T generate, but now miss the forwards. Still Ohio State and Iowa, which have dominated the works since 1954, and on the upswing.

This can't be said of Wisconsin, which went for broke in 1959 with seniors and lost the entire kaboodle. It might well be that the Badgers will be the first outfit in the history of the old circuit to drop from first to last in a year. Michigan, with Pete Elliott's older brother, Bump, in his second year, is coming back faster than most people imagine, but still isn't ready to challenge for the jackpot. Minnesota continues to wage a losing battle for Grade A personnel and isn't expected to crash the first division.

Indiana makes things miserable for everybody annually, but appears locked in its own web of trouble to a point of never seeing daylight. The Hoosiers certainly will finish ahead of somebody, but the power line has been cut and may not be restored for too long a period.

A Big Ten coach is in a frightful fix when denied the right to corral linemen who eat people.

Soviet Union Going Into 17th Games With More Than 300 Athletes

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ROME (AP)—The Soviet Union is going into the 17th Olympic games with an imposing squad of more than 300 athletes—hardened by years of specialized training, whipped by nationalistic fervor and protected by a portable "Iron Curtain."

Nevertheless, the Russians, weaker in track and challenged by Japan in gymnastics, may fall at least 15 medals short of the all-time high of 98 picked up at Melbourne in 1956 and may see the unofficial team supremacy return to the United States.

These are conclusions based on an eight-day tour behind the Iron Curtain—visiting Soviet training sites, studying their development methods and talking with leading athletes and officials.

Impressions from the survey included:

1. The Russian athlete is the best-trained in the world, physically—a robot off a giant assembly line.

2. The Russians still trail Americans in techniques and their competitive edge sometimes is dulled by a spartan system of regimentation.

3. To the average Russian, an Olympic gold medal or a triumph over the United States is almost as important as putting a sputnik into orbit. "Glory to Leninism—beat the Americans," is the Communist slogan.

4. Russian sportsmen are guarded as closely as a military secret.

Soviet athletes and even officials are constantly surrounded by a cordon of steely-eyed operatives monitoring every move and word. These watchdogs usually wear black hats. They have glistening steel teeth — like most Russians who have had dental work. They are suspected of being members of the secret police.

When Konstantin Andrianov, chairman of the Soviet Olympic Committee, was interviewed in his fourth floor walkup office in the Moscow headquarters, he introduced a tall, spare man with cold gray eyes.

"One of our vice presidents" he mumbled in Russian.

During the half-hour session, the gaunt one sat on the other side of the table at Andrianov's elbow, picking his finger nails. He seldom looked up. He never spoke.

Andiranov several times threw an uneasy glance in the man's direction. Later, the gaunt one, without a word, looked at his watch and frowned. Andrianov hastily closed the interview.

SUBSTITUTION RULE WILL KEEP COACHES HOPPING

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—College football coaches will be too busy keeping track of their players under the new substitution rules this fall to see much of the games, Coach Bowden Wyatt of Tennessee believes.

Wyatt said the more liberal substitution rules adopted by the NCAA will brighten up a team's offense while placing another headache on the coach.

If the coach isn't on his toes, he may get caught in a traffic jam of his players — or even worse, find that expert he's been saving for a key play is on the bench when he should be on the field, added Wyatt.

Under the new rules, players entering a game as a group are permitted two entries per quarter. There is no limit on the number of times a player may go on the field individually.

THE STORY BEHIND THE WATERFOWL REGULATIONS

Come each August, the Secretary of the Interior has the task of establishing the annual regulations to govern the hunting of waterfowl in the United States.

Those regulations do not just appear as the result of a wish or a prayer; a lot of exhaustive study and field investigative work from northern South America all the way to the Arctic goes into their preparation.

The most important surveys are the breeding ground surveys—in May and in July—but there is also an inventory of the waterfowl population on the wintering grounds earlier in the year in January immediately following the close of the hunting season. In addition, waterfowl kill of the previous season is determined through a post-card questionnaire which samples a large cross-section of American hunters. This survey measures also the hunter activity of the previous year as affected by the shooting regulations. There are also ground observations on special study and other areas across the country which are used to guide the development of the carefully-prepared regulations.

The wintering ground and May surveys produce only a measurement of the number of potential breeding birds. However, wintering ground counts are the only indices to populations of some species since techniques of sampling the remote or widely scattered nesting areas of these species have not yet been developed. The July survey gives the index to the production of young birds. The kind of hunting to be experienced during the fall flight depends very largely upon how many young birds are available.

The Winter Survey

The winter survey, a cooperative project by the States, Provinces, and the Federal Governments of Canada and the United States, is a combined aerial-ground count of waterfowl in early January. The emphasis is on aerial techniques, and an effort is made to determine waterfowl trends in all of the important wintering areas throughout the continent. The States and the Fish and Wildlife Service cover the important areas in the United States, and the Service annually flies survey routes in Mexico. Periodically, the Service covers the important areas in the West Indies, and this past winter they extended their coverage through Central America and into northern South America.

From 1935 until 1947, only a winter survey was conducted. However, the winter survey provides only a measure of the relative size of the breeding population available for the nesting season. Since an average fall flight of most species of waterfowl is made up of more young than adults, and since a failure in production can change the size of the fall flight markedly, it is obvious that a winter survey does not provide a reliable forecast of what the flight the following fall is likely to be.

The fallacy of setting regulations on the basis of winter survey data alone was demonstrated back in 1945, 1946, and 1947. In January 1945, the winter survey showed the breeding population at a high level. When waterfowl regulations were drafted that summer, there was no information available about conditions on the breeding grounds and the status of duck production that year. As a result, because the winter survey information was optimistic, the 80-day season with a 10-bird limit which had been in effect in 1944 was again allowed in 1945.

What had actually happened on the breeding grounds was poor production of young birds as a result of drought. This caused a considerable reduction in the 1945 fall flight. The winter inventory of January 1946 brought to light the first survey indication of the population decline. It revealed the winter waterfowl population was down nearly 50 per cent from the previous year.

Although the 1946 regulations were restricted somewhat, the January 1947 survey revealed another major reduction in population. Needless to say, the 1947 regulations were drastically curtailed, but the important point is that the reductions in season length and bag limits were made after the fall flight was reduced, and not in anticipation of the change. As a result, it seems certain that liberal seasons during a period of population decline reduced the population more than good management would have dictated. The need was apparent for a summer survey to show changes which were to occur in fall flight before regulations were adopted.

Breeding Area Surveys Begun in '47

Experimental breeding ground surveys were initiated in 1947 in the main duck factory in an effort to find statistically sound ways of measuring annual changes in production. The experiments continued through 1950, and the information produced was used to guide decisions. In 1951, the breeding ground surveys became a regular waterfowl management tool.

The breeding range has been divided into units of a size that can be conveniently surveyed by one aerial crew during a 3-week period—southern Alberta, for example. These survey units are further subdivided into strata with similar characteristics of habitat and waterfowl density patterns. Statistical methods are employed to determine sampling pattern and intensity necessary to provide the desired degree of accuracy. Most of the aerial transects are established in an east-west direction. These transects range from 7 to 20 miles apart in areas of dense duck populations to as much as 60 miles apart in the more northern areas where the breeding population is more scattered. Data are recorded separately for each 18-mile segment along the transect lines to facilitate analysis.

The planes, each carrying a pilot biologist and an observer, fly the same straight line transects during each breeding ground survey. The planes fly at an altitude of about 100 feet. The observer counts birds on one side of the plane and the pilot on the other. Each counts birds in a strip approximately 220 yards wide on his side of the plane. A voice recorder or dictating machine is used to record numbers.

A 4-mile flight along a transect yields a sample of the birds on a square mile. The average number of birds per square mile sampled by the survey is then expanded to give the estimated total number of birds present in each stratum. The transects are flown in May and again in July. The information obtained gives the story of the production by breeding waterfowl in these principal nesting grounds of the continent.

100,000 Miles of Survey Flights

A total of seven Federal planes take part in the survey in Canada, Alaska, and the United States, and several State planes fly surveys of prairie and other waterfowl breeding habitat within the boundaries of this country. These planes fly about 100,000 miles each summer on these surveys.

In addition to flight crews, the Service has a small force of waterfowl specialists on study areas at key points in the duck factory. They carry out ground checks to develop visibility factors along the transects, and provide additional information on breeding conditions.

All these personnel cooperate in the preparation of reports which summarize the observations they have made of breeding ducks and broods on the nesting grounds.

The survey of the breeding populations which begins in May and ends in early June, determines the numbers of pairs and single drakes on territory for different species along the transects and the ratio of single drakes to paired birds as an index to nesting progress.

In the July production survey, the number of duck broods and the number of coot broods are counted as well as the adults without broods in pairs and as single drakes and hens. The latter is to indicate how much nesting is still in progress. Data on age classes of broods also are collected. The number of ducklings in Class II (partly feathered) and Class III (almost entirely feathered but not yet flying) broods also are counted to give the average brood size.

Four Reports Are Made

Four reports for administrative use are made each summer to the Washington office by the field crews on the breeding ground survey work. They are as follows:

Report No. 1—Due May 15. General—covering weather, water, arrival dates, etc., but no actual survey data.

Report No. 2—Due June 1. Forecast of breeding ground conditions based on the breeding population survey. It contains information relative to changes in breeding populations, water conditions, and a forecast of probable fall flight based on all available data.

Report No. 3—Due July 15. General—covers weather, water, emergence of broods, habitat conditions, etc., but no actual survey data.

Report No. 4—Due July 30. Final forecast of breeding ground conditions for use by the Service as a basis for setting the shooting regulations. The report includes a summary of weather and water conditions during the brood period together with a production forecast.

Although the prairie duck factory supplies, under normal situations, from 50 to 70 per cent of duck production of the continent, and birds from it migrate to all four flyways, the principal flights are to the Mississippi, Central, and Pacific Flyways. Moving to the north and east, more birds go to the Atlantic Flyway.

For the measurement of most of the goose production in the Far North and for the bulk of the black duck production which is scattered across eastern Canada, survey techniques are not yet perfected. As a result, the trend up or down in the count of these birds in the winter survey, plus a limited number of restricted observations of localized breeding success for blacks are presently the means of producing indices of production of these species.

In addition to Government personnel, Ducks Unlimited and several other private conservation agencies conduct waterfowl production surveys as part of their programs of service. They vary in type and scope. In their operations in Canada, FWS and DU field men work in close contact.

Regulations Development Has Tight Schedule

The Administrative Procedures Act has requirements which make necessary the approval of the regulations by the Secretary of the Interior early enough so they may appear in the Federal Register at least 30 days before the earliest date waterfowl hunting will be permitted that fall. This creates a tight schedule for the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife personnel who have the task of working up the annual regulations.

The final reports on production success arrive in Washington in late July. They are consolidated and analyzed, and a report is prepared on production success and flight prospects for each flyway. These data are then considered by a waterfowl regulations committee in the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife of the Fish and Wildlife Service. This committee develops recommendations for regulations. At the same time, as much survey data as is available has been submitted to those Flyway Councils (made up of State fish and game departments) which are holding meetings.

Then a meeting is held in Washington by the Waterfowl Advisory Committee of the Fish and Wildlife Service. This body is composed of members of the National Waterfowl Council, representing the States in the four flyways, and representatives of all national conservation organizations.

The summary of the breeding ground data developed by the intensive surveys and the forecasts for the fall flight are presented at this meeting in open session. Then, in executive session, it hears proposals of the regulations committee. This is followed by a discussion by the advisory members and their concurrence or recommendations for modification. The Director of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife then decides on the form of the recommendations for the year's hunting regulations. They are submitted through channels for approval. Then they go to the Secretary of the Interior for his final decision. Once the framework (length of season and daily bag and possession limits) has been approved by the Secretary, the States make their selections of shooting dates within the overall period when hunting is permitted. These dates are incorporated in the final regulations. Earlier, the so-called basic regulations on hunting procedures and practices have been adopted. Any late changes in these basic regulations on the basis of a change in waterfowl conditions also are incorporated in the final regulations.

Once signed by the Secretary, the regulations go to the Federal Register and are published.

Development of waterfowl regulations now is truly an example of improved, modern game management.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mel Roach drove in three runs on a homer, a single and a squeeze bunt Saturday as the Milwaukee Braves beat the San Francisco Giants 4-2.

Fireballing right-hander Bob Buhl held the Giants to six hits as he registered his 11th victory against six losses. The Braves got 13 off loser Mike Mc Cormick, now 10-8.

Roach lofted a homer, his second of the year, over the left field fence in the third.

Willie Mays rapped his 22nd homer of the season into the left field bleachers in the sixth inning.

Redlegs Triumph Behind Brosnan

CINCINNATI (AP)—Jim Brosnan pitched—and hit—Cincinnati out of trouble in the eighth inning Saturday, producing a tight relief stint that helped the Reds seal a 6-2 victory over Los Angeles.

Young Jim O'Toole, who took the victory, had held Los Angeles under tight check until the sixth inning, but tired quickly.

Marshall Bridges took over pitching for Cincinnati in the eighth but Tom Davis banged his second double of the day and Chuck Essegian walked.

Control specialist Brosnan inherited the job and cut down the next three men. Norm Larker flied out, Duke Snider struck out and Frank Robinson ran hard to snare Charlie Neal's fly.

Brosnan also drove in two runs with a double in the Reds' three-run uprising in the eighth.

DOCTOR'S PLAN TO BE HOTTEST RODDER STYMIED

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP) — A repeat of an earlier mechanical problem Saturday put a 30-day crimp in the plans of a Los Angeles doctor to become the hottest rodder in the world.

Dr. Nathan Ostich, 50-year-old physician, made a bid Saturday morning to set a new world auto speed record in his jet-powered streamliner. But air intakes on the sides of the fuselage-shaped car collapsed from pressure.

Ostich sped his "Flying Caduceus" over about three miles of these western Utah Salt Flats before his air intakes collapsed and he had to pop his braking parachute.

The air scoops collapsed Friday during power runups with the 7,000 horsepower J-47 jet engine. Ostich said he would try to make some metal air scoops "and come back again in a month or so."

The program of tennis instruction sponsored by the YMCA will thus be climaxed by the competition of tourney play this week. Response to the program has been very good and perhaps tournaments such as this one will put Jacksonville on the tennis map.

Below are the names of players that have been received thus far:

Judy Davidson, Suzonne Sturgeon, Joyce Shillings, Patty Omundson, Carol Flynn, Cheryl McDaniel, Ellen Rammelkamp, Linda Farrell, Linda Brown, Jean Odaffer, Peggy Middleton, Peggy Shanle, Charlotte Henry, Mary Ann Todd, Darlene Kaiser, Thomara Gam, Jane Sorrells, Carol Spencer, Barb DeVore, Judy Hughes, Sandra Warner, Jean Hemphill, Andy Kant, Steve Wallis, Robert Dinsmore, Jeff Coultas, Bill Shanle, Ricky Brune, Jim Fawkes, Bill Gilmore, Lee Zimmerman and Fred Busche.

If there are others that wish to compete, names will be received between 5:15 and 5:30 p.m. at the MacMurray College tennis courts at the start of the tournament Monday. First round play will begin immediately at 5:30 p.m.

Olympic Officials Name Nieder, Sime To American Team

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) — Taking note of two record performances, U.S. Olympic officials Saturday named Bill Nieder and Dave Sime to the formidable U.S. team.

Nieder, an Army lieutenant, broke his pending shotput record of 65-7 with a 65-10 heave Friday night at Mt. San Antonio College as the squad held a final tune-up before leaving California. The recognized world mark of 63-4 is currently held by a teammate, Parry O'Brien.

And Sime ran the 100 meters in a blistering 10.1, equaling a world record held by three men.

Afterward, team officials said Nieder will replace the injured Dave Davis, of San Fernando Valley State, whose best mark Friday was 59-8½. Davis had edged Nieder in the recent qualifying meet at Palo Alto, Calif. Davis, whose right wrist is heavily taped, will go to Rome as an alternate, ineligible to compete unless a starter is disabled.

Nieder, former strong boy of Kansas University, flew home to his station Friday night without knowing he would go to Rome as a contestant. Officials telephoned him at the San Francisco Presidio to relay the news.

Sime, former Duke University star, and Paul Winder of Oregon State had tied in the 100 meters at the qualifying meet in Palo Calif.

Team officials said Winder will go to Rome as a member of the 400-meter relay team. Others named to that team: Sime, Ray Norton, Frank Budd, Hayes Jones and Stone Johnson.

They said the 1,600-meter relay squad will consist of Jack Yerman, Earl Young, Otis Davis, Ted Woods, Jerry Siebert and Glenn Davis.

Officials broke with tradition last week by substituting John Kelley of Groton, Conn., for Bobby Cons, of Culver City, Calif., in the marathon squad. Cons had won a berth in the qualifying meet. He will go to Rome as an alternate.

Friday Baseball

By WHITNEY MARTIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees, who practically invented the home run, now find the monster rising up to plague them.

They not only are being on occasion out-homered by their opponents of the moment, as they were Friday night in losing to the Washington Senators, 12 - 7, but their most persistent rival in the pennant race — Baltimore — suddenly has discovered the right button to press to put the monster in motion.

The astonishing, and possibly astonished, Orioles have hit for the circuit 18 times in their last eight games, and all but one of their last 17 runs have been the result of four-base wallops.

They punched the button twice Friday night, Jim Gentile and Ron Hansen hitting for the circuit in Baltimore's 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

It was the seventh straight triumph for Paul Richards' surprising collection of youngsters and oldsters, and brought them to within 5 percentage points of the American League-leading Yankees.

The Chicago White Sox pulled within 1½ games of the top by beating Kansas City 6-4. Detroit beat Cleveland by the same score in 10 innings.

Hansen's blow came in the ninth with the score tied, and the tie score was the result of Gentile's two-run blast in the eighth when Baltimore was trailing 3-1.

Chuck Estrada, who pitched the final two innings, was the winner.

Meanwhile, back at the stadium, the Yankees were having their troubles. Manager Casey Stengel paraded five pitchers in an effort to stop the suddenly-aroused Senators, who cracked out 13 hits, including home runs by Bob Allison, Harmon Killebrew and Jim Lemon.

The Chicago White Sox, thwarted and frustrated in 17 innings without a score, finally blew their top in the sixth inning of their game with Kansas City, scoring six times. They then subsided but the six runs were enough to give them a 6-4 victory and move them up to within a game and a half of the top.

Eleven men went to the plate in the big inning. Bud Daley and Ned Garver were victims of the assault. Bob Shaw got the victory, his fourth over the A's this year. Daley had defeated the Sox three times this season.

Joe Gordon beat Jimmy Dykes in the first meeting between the Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians since the two managers swapped jobs. The Tigers won it, 6-4, with Charlie Maxwell belting a two-run homer in the 10th inning. He had hit another two-run homer in the third, when the Tigers scored their other four runs and chased starter Jim Grant. Bobby Locke came in and pitched 5 1-3 innings of runless ball before he was relieved for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Johnny Klippstein followed and was clipped for Maxwell's decisive home run in the 10th.

National League

There is an old theory in baseball that the way to win a pennant is for a club to at least hold its own against its leading rivals, and knock the stuffing out of the second division clubs.

Until recently the St. Louis Cardinals had been a little negligent about the first part of that advice. They have been whopping the weaker clubs with monotonous regularity, all right. They are 12 and 7 against Cincinnati, 12 and 5 against Philadelphia, and 9 and 5 against the Cubs.

But the one leading rival they weren't holding their own with was the Pittsburgh Pirates. They have been doing all right against the Los Angeles Dodgers, with a 7 and 6 record. They are all square with Milwaukee at nine games apiece, and they are 7 and 6 with San Francisco.

When they started their current series on Thursday with the Pirates, however, they had won five and lost eight, a situation not conducive to pennant aspirations.

The Cards suddenly seem to have realized that the Bucs must be made to walk the plank if St. Louis was to have a chance at the pennant, and they are doing something about it.

Friday night they turned in their second straight victory in their five-game series with the National League leaders, 9-2, and in so doing narrowed the margin to 7 and 8. And incidentally cut Pittsburgh's lead over them to three games.

Milwaukee beat San Francisco 4-2 and climbed into a third place tie with Los Angeles which lost to Cincinnati 3-2. Philadelphia beat the Chicago Cubs 10-6.

It was a costly victory for the Cardinals. Catcher Carl Sawatski had to have seven stitches taken in his throwing hand as the result of being hit by a foul tip, and second baseman Julian Javier was conked sliding into second. He was only stunned, but Sawatski will be lost for a week at least.

Warren Spahn tosed a six-hitter at the Giants to win for Milwaukee. It was Spahn's 280th victory of his career, and brought him within two of Anthony Mullane, who is 12th among all-time winners.

A three-run double by Mel Roach in the fifth was the big blow of the game.

The Reds, held scoreless for 14 straight innings by Los Angeles pitchers, finally broke the spell as rookie Gordon Coleman drove in two runs and Jay Hook turned in his ninth victory. He allowed the Dodgers only five hits, four of them doubles.

The Philadelphia Phillies scored five runs in a hectic seventh inning to beat the Cubs. Pancho Herrera's double followed by Tony Ganzolez' home run accounted for four of the runs.

Until the seventh Cub pitcher Glen Hobbie had an edge on Phillie starter Robin Roberts, thanks to solo home runs by Ernie Banks and Ed Bouchee. Both starters went out in the seventh. Hobbie getting the defeat and Chris Short, the second of three Phillie pitchers, the victory.

CHISOX LAND AVERILL

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves announced Saturday that utility player Earl Averill has been acquired by the Chicago White Sox from Milwaukee's Louisville farm club in the American Assn.

In exchange, Louisville obtained infielder Don Drohovich, another player to be named later, and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Averill plays every position except shortstop and pitcher.

Pittsburgh Triumph Increases Lead To Four Games

Baltimore Rallies For 8-7 Win In 9th On Pilarcik's Single

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pinch-hitter Al Pilarcik's two-out single in the ninth drove in the tying and winning runs Saturday night as the irrepressible Baltimore Orioles whipped the Boston Red Sox 8-7 for their eighth straight victory.

Winning in the ninth inning for the second night in a row, Baltimore stayed four percentage points behind the New York Yankees in the American League pennant chase.

Held without a homer for the first time in nine games, Baltimore made good use of the shorter hits in the free-scoring contest before 23,672 fans.

Only one of Baltimore's 11 hits went for extra bases. That was pinchhitter Bob Boyd's one-out double in the ninth following a walk to another pinch-hitter, Clint Courtney.

Jack Brandt struck out with runners on second and third, but with a two-strike count, Pilarcik singled to right off losing pitcher Tom Sturdivant.

Sturdivant, the fourth Boston pitcher, entered the game in the seventh after the Red Sox scored three times to take the lead for the first time. He retired seven men in a row, four on strike outs, before he walked Courtney.

The Orioles, who have won 12 of 14 games against the Red Sox, blew 4-0 and 6-4 leads before storming back to set a modern club record for consecutive victories. Since July 22, Baltimore has won 17 of 21 games.

Coach Derickson is a 1960 graduate of McKendree college.

Tony Zeppetella of Collinsville is a bright prospect for guard at the U. of Illinois. It is the most undermanned position on the 1960 football team and Tony's play as a sophomore in spring drills has brightened the prospects at the post. He is a stocky 5-9, 210 pounds, played halfback in high school and he is speedy. His size and mobility make him an excellent downfield blocker. "Zip-Zip" was an all-Southwestern conference halfback during his senior year under Coach Vergil Fletcher at Collinsville high school and won special mention All-State honors. During his prep days he lettered in track.

Tom Hays has been named froshsoph football and assistant track coach at Herrin high school. He formerly coached at Zeigler high school. Galesburg high students who marry after the opening of school Sept. 6 will have their activities greatly restricted under new regulations approved by the Board of Education. The new ruling was announced this week by Supt. Clifton Bell. The school opening date has been set as the effective date for the new policy, which will permit married students to attend classes but will bar them from all activities, including participation in athletics. Those already in school who are married are not affected by the new rule. The students who wed after opening date will be considered as special students who would be expected to go home when their classes are over according to Dr. Bell. A youth council has been appointed by the Board of Education to make recommendations on welfare on the student body and development of principles of character and good conduct.

Lewistown's Athletic Director, Jim Groutage, is a Canton high graduate who starred in basketball under Coach Mark Peterman. Dean Johnson is the football coach, teaches World Problems, driver training and boys physical education. Judge Claims Players Borrowing Money From Gambler

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John Quinn, general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, said Saturday he has written Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick passing along information from a judge that visiting players had borrowed money from a convicted gambler.

"I have no other comment," Quinn said repeatedly when asked for elaboration. "Any other comment will have to come from Frick."

Judge Ethan Allen Doty of Common Pleas Court said he phoned Quinn Friday and told him he thought Frick should investigate the alleged practice here, determine whether it exists elsewhere, and outlaw it wherever found for the good of the game.

On Aug. 1 Doty sentenced Harold Friedman, former owner of the Moon-Glo Cafe, to two-to-five years in prison after a jury had convicted him of attempting to bribe former Phillies' pitcher Humberto Robinson in 1959. Robinson, now with Buffalo of the International League, testified that Friedman offered him $1,500 to throw a game to Cincinnati. Friedman offered him $1,500 to pending an appeal to the Pennsylvania Superior Court.

Friedman testified at his trial last June that he lent money from time to time to visiting players.

Maris' Triple Gives Ford And Yankees 1-0 Win Over Washington

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees put together a triple by Roger Maris, a sacrifice fly by Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford's three-hit pitching for a 1-0 victory over the Washington Senators Saturday. The victory enabled the Yankees to retain their slim lead over Baltimore in the American League.

The Orioles defeated the Boston Red Sox 8-7, in a night game in Baltimore. They trail the Yanks by just four percentage points.

Rookie Don Lee and Ford were locked in a pitching duel when Maris led off the seventh with a triple for the fourth hit off the young Washington righthander. After missing a home run by inches on a foul ball, Mantle sent a high fly to Bob Allison in right. Maris had no trouble scoring.

Ford had a no-hitter going until Allison singled for the first of his two hits with two out in the sixth. The little Yankee southpaw during the streak. He gave up a faced the minimum of 17 men walk to Jose Valdivielso in the third but the Senators' shortstop was picked off.

Perry Notches 15th Victory In Tribe's 2-1 Victory

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Perry gave up seven scattered hits Saturday in winning his 15th game of the season— 2-1 decision over the Detroit Tigers. He has lost five.

A double by catcher Bob Wilson provided all the runs the 24-year-old Cleveland Indians' righthander needed in maintaining his stride as the winningest pitcher in the American League.

Perry allowed only three hits—two singles by Chico Fernandez and one by Charlie Maxwell—in the last six innings.

Frank Lary also went the distance in losing his 12th game in 22 decisions.

Cleveland scored its two runs in the second inning. Jim Piersall singled to left field and Tito Francona singled to right. Both advanced on a wild throw by rightfielder Rocky Colavito and scored on Wilson's double to left.

Unitas Proves He's Still The Best Gun This Side Of Pecos

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Johnny Unitas still is the best gun this side of the Pecos.

The triggerman of the Baltimore Colts fired three touchdowns and an assortment of other shots Friday night in sending the National Football League champions to a 32-7 victory over a scrappy bunch of College All-Stars.

A crowd of 70,000 saw the game in Soldier Field in balmy, moonlight weather and countless others watched it on television.

They saw that the Colts are ready for a fast draw in aiming for their third straight NFL title this season.

Unitas' passing was in midseason form, and so was his main target-halfback Lenny Moore. For Coach Otto Graham's graduated collegians, virtually all of whom now will report as rookies to NFL camps, the game was a valuable lesson in the caliber of professional football.

Johnny hit Moore for a 3-yard touchdown in the first period; he rifled 3 and 18-yard scoring passes to him in the second, and, in all, connected 17 times in 29 tosses for 237 yards.

In addition to adding all extra points, Steve Myhra booted two field goals of 27 yards and another of 38.

Baltimore also got a safety, in the third quarter as George Izo of Notre Dame (who will report to the St. Louis Cardinals) was mobbed behind the goal line.

The Colts scored in each quarter and more or less coasted home after rolling up a 24-0 halftime bulge.

The Colts trimmed the All-Stars 29-0 last year. The pro champions now have won 17 games in the series while losing 8. There have been two ties.

If a team ever looked good in defeat, it was the All-Stars. Don Meredith of Southern Methodist (Dallas Cowboys) clicked on 8 of 20 passes for 156 yards. End Gail Cogdill of Washington State (Detroit Lions) stood out as a receiver with 5 catches for 64 yards.

Slender Biochemistry Sails Into History—Breaks Owens' Record

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) — The slender biochemistry student forgot the three stitches in his leg, roared down the runway, sprang lightly off the edge of the broad-jump pit—and sailed into history.

When he came down, Ralph Boston was 26 feet 11¼ inches away from where he started his jump—three inches farther than Jesse Owens' great leap in May 1935, the oldest rack and field record of them all.

Boston, although he had spiked himself in the leg on an earlier jump, achieved a double distinction Friday night in the U.S. team's pre-Olympic meet at Mount San Antonio College. He became the first broad jumper in history to clear 26 feet four times in one meet.

The 21-year-old Tennessee A & I senior from Laurel, Miss., leaped 26-0¾, 26-6, 26-1½ and 26-11¾ on his second, third, fourth and fifth tries. He did not take his sixth trial.

He said of his record-breaking leap:

"Jesse said it was all right to break it. He's tired of it."

In Chicago, Owens, the Babe Ruth of track and field, agreed graciously:

"I'm happy to see the record broken, and I'm just thankful that it stood up this long."

Both Owens and Boston are Negroes.

Boston's jump was just one of four world record-shattering performances Friday night. The others:

Hal Connolly, Southern California Striders, 230 feet, 9 inches in the hammer throw (bettering his own record of 225-4, set in 1958).

Bill Nieder, Army, 65 feet, 10 inches in the shot put (bettering his pending record of 65-7, set last August).

The team of Eddie Southern, Earl Young, Otis Davis and Jack Yerman, 3:05.6 in the mile relay (bettering record of the U.S. national team of 1956). The second team in Friday night's relay — Cliff Cushman, Ted Woods, Jerry Seibert and Davis — also broke the record, finishing in 2:-06.1.

Two other world records were tied:

Rink Babka of the Southern California Striders equalled the mark of Poland's Edmund Piatkowski by throwing the discus 196 feet, 6½ inches. And Dave Sime of the Duke Track Club tied a record held by three men, running 100 meters in 10.1 seconds.

Boston, the crew-cut college student, also has equalled or bettered the Olympic standard in the high jump and high hurdles.

Manager Walt Alston used all 20 players, plus 6 of 10 pitchers, in the National League's winning effort in the second All-Star game this year.

White Sox Rap 13 Hits In 8-3 Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Roy Sievers' three-run homer paced a 13-hit attack which led the Chicago White Sox to a 8-3 victory over the Kansas City Athletics Saturday.

Sievers' blast, his 23rd, capped a five-run fourth inning and put the third place White Sox ahead to stay after Kansas City had grabbed an early three-run lead.

Dick Donovan, taking over for starter Frank Baumann in the fourth inning, pitched five-hit ball the rest of the way and gained his fifth triumph against a single loss.

Johnny Briggs, second of four Kansas City pitchers, suffered his fourth defeat in eight decisions after relieving John Tsitouris in the fourth.

NO TIE-BREAKER

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Henrico County's board of supervisors had a 2-2 tie vote on an ordinance setting hours for the sale of beer. That's when they discovered that the official tie breaker had been dead for 11 years Judge E. W. Henning Jr., appointed a new tie-breaker for the forgotten vacancy.

Army Study Sees Bright Future For Waterways

By JOHN KAMPS
Associated Press Special Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Army Engineer study, released Saturday, paints a bright picture of the future of waterway transportation. It points to numerous opportunities for major expansion of barge navigation to help carry a doubled freight load expected in 20 years.

A report of the study was made public by the Senate Committee on National Water Resources, which had requested the Engineers to make an across-the-board appraisal of the inland waterway potential.

Predicting the national freight load will double by 1980 and redouble by 2000, the report said this huge increase will tax transportation systems to the limit.

Make Sail Wins Alabama Stakes

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (AP) — Make Sail, away from the winner's circle since the Kentucky Oaks May 6, carried the silks of Harry F. Guggenheim's Cain Hoy Stable to a come-from-behind victory in the 80th running of the $59,700 Alabama Stakes for 3-year-old fillies at Saratoga Saturday.

Manuel Ycaza took the homebred daughter of Ambiorix to the center of the track rounding the final turn in the 1¼-mile race and then overhauled Rash Statement and Clear Road for a 2½-length decision.

Clear Road, lightly regarded Edward Seinfeld entry, edged Hal Price Headley's Rash Statement by a nose for second money.

As the co-favorite with Rash Statement, Make Sail paid $6.90, $5 and $3.50. Clear Road returned $12.30 and $6.50. Rash Statement, winner of the recent Delaware Oaks, paid $3.10 to show.

Cubs Sink Phillies On Homers By Kindall, Banks

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Second baseman Jerry Kindall belted a home run and single Saturday and Ernie Banks hit his 32nd homer of the year to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 4-2 victory over Philadelphia.

Kindall's drive into the lower left field stands in the sixth after two were out was the clincher. It was his second of the year. Banks gave the Cubs an insurance run in the eighth when he drove one of reliever Art Mahaffey's pitches into the upper left field stands.

Bob Anderson picked up his sixth victory against seven defeats.

Johnny Buzhardt, a former Cub, was charged with the loss.

Dragsters Will Name A Champion In Special Race

UNION GROVE, Wis. (AP) — Don Garlits of Tampa, Fla., and Chris Karamesines of Chicago—owners of two of the fastest dragsters in the world—meet here Sunday in a special match competition to break a tie and name a champion.

Garlits, with his "Swamp Rat," and Karamesines in his "Chizler," will engage in a two-out-of-three series to determine the 1960 titleholder.

Both of the high-powered machines on occasion have zoomed past the 200 miles per hour mark. Karamesines was clocked at 204.54 m.p.h. at Alton, Ill., earlier this year.

The cars are powered by supercharged Chrysler engines. They are capable of more than 1,000 horsepower on a nitro methane and alcohol fuel combination.

It is the second time Womack has taken the title. The 22-year-old dental student, a leg amputee, captured the crown in 1957.

Womack's total over the 71-par Midlothian course was 73-75-82—230. Second was Wally Baskovich of Clearwater, Fla., with 78-75-81—234.

JOHANSSON READY TO END BUSINESS INTERESTS AT HOME

GOTEBURG, Sweden (AP) — Ingemar Johansson former world heavyweight boxing champion, is about to wind up his extensive business interests in Sweden, said the Gotenburgs-Posten Saturday.

The usually well-informed paper described Johansson as very unhappy about the Swedish taxation authorities' refusal to recognize his residence in Switzerland.

Johansson, who was dethroned by Floyd Patterson in New York fight last June, bought an apartment in Geneva about a year ago. Goteborg authorities, however, refuse to recognize this as a permanent settlement abroad. Johansson was informed of this decision earlier this year.

Johansson's interests in Sweden include two modern trawlers two huge excavators, of which one is Sweden's biggest, one airplane and an undetermined amount of real estate holdings.

St. Louis Youth Admits Robbery In Edwardsville

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Edwardsville police said a St. Louis boy, Harley Holt, has admitted orally that he and a 38-year-old companion robbed a tavern owner of $1,800 early Saturday.

Holt and Joseph H. Hinnen Jr. were charged with armed robbery in warrants issued later in the day. The two were held on $10,000 bond each. Hinnen lives in Glen Carbon, Ill.

The pair was captured 45 minutes after the holdup by two Madison County sheriff's deputies, James Estes and Louis Colone, who surprised them in a car parked west of Edwardsville in a routine check.

Both were identified by the tavern owner, Frank Bach, although both robbers had worn masks. Bach said Hinnen was a frequept visitor to the tavern and was there Friday night when Bach had a large amount of money on hand to cash checks.

Edwardsville Police Chief Jack Hartung said the youth, and later Hinnen, orally admitted the robbery and stealing a car in Granite City, Ill., but refused to sign a written statement.

Bach surrendered a metal box and money bag to the robbers when he was held up as he walked from the tavern after closing for the night. Deputies said the pair was attempting to open the metal box when the arrests were made.

Sansonith To Quit As Premier Of Viet Nam

By RELMAN MORIN

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) Rebels in Laos claimed Saturday pro-Western Premier Tiao Samsonith agreed to resign to clear the way for a new neutral regime in the Asian kingdom. But other reports said royal units are moving against the rebels in Vientiane, the capital.

Capt. Kong Le, 35, who engineered the revolt in Vientiane Tuesday, warned that "bloody war" would break out if Samsonith does not go ahead and step down. Weeping, he repeated at a rally that "the government must resign to forestall bloodshed.

There was no direct word from Samsonith, who took over last May after elections and led Laos away from a policy of neutralism. He still was reported in Luang Prabang, the royal city 140 miles northwest of Vientiane.

Sources in Nong Khai, Thailand city across the Mekong River from Vientiane, said two royal army battalions were moving in the direction of the capital. How close they were to the city was not indicated.

To Dedicate Historymobile At Fair Monday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) —With a Revolutionary War sword, Gov. William G. Stratton will cut a ribbon officially opening a $100,000 historical exhibit Monday at the Illinois State Fair.

The ceremony will mark the inauguration of the Robert R. McCormick historymobile, made possible by the gift of $25,000 to the Illinois State Historical Society from the Robert R. McCormick Charitable trust, set up in the will of the late publisher of the Chicago Tribune.

The exhibit, called "The Declaration of Independence and the Men who Signed It," consists of original historical documents loaned by Illinois collectors and dealers in historical materials, plus items from the Illinois State Historical Library.

After the fair, the historymobile will be taken to the Wisconsin State Fair. It then will be available for exhibition at schools, centennial celebrations and other similar events in Illinois.

Deny Burial For Indian Veteran

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—George Vincent Nash was given a soldier's burial Saturday. A trumpet sounded taps as the Indian war veteran's casket was lowered into the earth.

The rites for the Winnebago Indian, who was refused burial at another cemetery three days ago, were conducted in an American Legion plot at Perry Mount Cemetery near here.

The military ceremony was in contrast to the modest family rites that had taken place Wednesday for the World War I veteran.

At White Chapel Cemetery in Troy, a Detroit suburb, services had been conducted and his casket lowered into its grave alongside his wife's when officials ordered it removed because he was an Indian.

White Chapel restricts its funerals to Caucasians.

A public furore arose. Veterans groups protested. Unions and others joined in the outcry.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams, deploring "discrimination," ordered a state investigation and talked of possible legislation to forbid such an occurrence in the future.

A son, Vincent, 30, rejected an offer to have the burial at Arlington National Cemetery at Washington, D.C., final resting place for many of America's soldier dead.

Nash's wife, Carrie, a Chippewa Indian, was buried in White Chapel Cemetery in 1949. Officials said there must have been some misunderstanding at the time.

TORO CLAIMS 30,000 SQUARE MILES

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—The tiny, hereditary Kingdom of Toro in western Uganda is laying claim to 30,000 square miles of territory in the eastern Congo which adjoins its borders. But Britain, which rules Toro as part of Uganda Protectorate, "regretted" officially Friday that it could not give the kingdom its support. Toro maintains that the terirtory claimed—mostly in Kivu Province—was for 600 years under Toro jurisdiction until the treaty at the turn of the century altered Africa's political boundary lines.

HART REUNION
Aug. 21—Nichols Park

Winchester 'Bazaar' Held August 12, 13

By Dorothy Sauer
(Winchester Correspondent)
(Telephone Pioneer 2-3439)

WINCHESTER—The first "Sidewalk Bazaar" days held in the city of Winchester Friday and Saturday, Aug. 12 and 13, were a huge success with people from Winchester and outlying towns on hand to purchase the many, many items offered for sale.

The streets of the city were truly a "bazaar" sight with tables of sale merchandise lining the streets in front of the stores.

Almost everyone acknowledged that the most fun of all was in seeing the various store personnel in their attractive attire. The costumes ranged all the way from the sublime to the ridiculous. It is impossible to describe all of the hilarious outfits and to describe a few would be omitting some just as funny.

On Friday afternoon, for the benefit of the huge crowd still in town, a large portion of those in costume paraded around the square with Dr. William O'Reilly and Mrs. Joanne Leiner judging the costumes.

Miss Wanda Bernard, employed at the Forshey Variety Store, won first place. Miss Bernard was dressed in a burlap costume in a take-off of "Robinson Crusoe", complete with tattered trousers and a rope belt.

Second place went to Albert Newberry of the Newberry Grocery Store who was attired as a sedate lady, the costume complete with a dark wig. Third place went to Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Coats of Coats' Texaco Station who were resplendent in red and white swim suits of the early 1920 era.

Estes Kefauver: Political Enigma

Sen. Estes Kefauver, who has won his way back to the Senate for another six years, is one of the country's most unusual political phenomena.

His first real claim to fame was in 1948 when he beat the well-known Crump machine in Tennessee to win elevation from the House to the Senate.

On that beginning he built a national reputation with his celebrated crime hearings across the country. With the help of television he was, by 1952, virtually a household word.

Kefauver sought that year to convert his gains by entering a host of Democratic presidential primaries. At the outset he defeated then President Truman in New Hampshire and went on to sweep the lot.

This brought him to Chicago with upwards of 300 delegate votes, a good deal but far short of the number needed for nomination. He couldn't get the rest of the way.

Four years later he had enough residual strength to try again. Surprisingly, he beat Adlai Stevenson in Minnesota. But in three subsequent tests—in Florida, Oregon and California—Stevenson turned the tables. Kefauver pulled out but then was nominated for vice president at Chicago.

When the Stevenson-Kefauver ticket was crushed, the general feeling was that Kefauver was through as a presidential prospect. Yet even into 1960 his holdover strength showed up in opinion polls, often placing him higher than several newer and more active candidates.

Probably his day in the presidential limelight has indeed passed. He could never surmount his big hurdle: the party professionals of both North and South generally wanted no part of him.

In 1956 they felt he had earned the running mate's spot and would help the ticket. But that was the extent of their interest in him.

His third term triumph in Tennessee assures him a place in the picture until 1966, but it will never again be so large as before.

Since he is a moderate in many ways, Tennessee's resounding support of him most likely amounts to re-affirmation that the state itself prefers this course in many fields, including civil rights.

It would be extremely risky to conclude from this result, however, that the entire South intends to give similar endorsement to the Democratic national ticket in November. That story is yet to be told.

LITTLE BOY — BIG FISH

DESTIN, Fla. (AP)— To 11-year-old Terry Burnett, it was an irresistable challenge when a 500-pound shark cruised by the pier where he was fishing.

The boy was outweighed 10 to 1 and had only a light rod with a reel carrying less than 200 yards of 50-pound test line. But he tossed his bait in front of the monster, which took it, and the battle was on.

For an hour and a half, they tugged back and forth. Three times the shark dragged the boy the 650-foot length of the pier. When the shark approached the pilings, Terry yelled "stomp" and and the crowd of onlookers would stamp their feet on the boards to scare the monster back to open water.

Finally, the youngster was able to hold the shark's head on the beach long enough for other fishermen to drive home snatch hooks. It took 10 men to drag the boy's catch onto the sand.

INDIA UNEMPLOYMENT

NEW DELHI (AP)— India will have between 7,500,000 and eight million persons unemployed at the end of her second five year plan next April.

The government estimate compares with 5,300,000 unemployed at the beginning of the plan. The figures, based on a population now estimated at 420 million, do not include extensive underemployment.

Efforts are being made to find work in the third five year plan, from 1961 to 1966, for about 14,500,000 new job-seekers.

Push New Program to Give U.S. Food to World's Hungry

By PETER EDSON
Written For NEA

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A gigantic new giveaway plan to distribute America's food surpluses through the United Nations "to help feed the hungry of the world" is being developed by the Eisenhower Administration.

President Eisenhower had planned to present this idea to the Big Four meeting in Paris last May. When Russian Chairman Nikita Khrushchev blew up the Summit, the plan was set back.

The next heard of it was in a U.S. farm policy speech Vice President Nixon made at a Republican rally in Minot, N. Dak., June 20.

The Nixon speech was primarily a general preview of his own farm policy ideas. That got the most news attention.

Nixon also revealed, however, that he, Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon, U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, and the White House "Food For Peace" coordinator, Don Paarlberg, had devised this plan for helping to feed the world's hungry.

The vice president did not present it as "a cure-all for the farm problem or the world's problems." He described it as a cooperative effort by nations with food surpluses to share them with "have-not" nations, without disturbing commercial markets.

The idea of doing this through the United Nations instead of through the Big Four is the new wrinkle intended to salvage the plan.

It would, in brief, involve getting the food surplus countries like Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Argentine and France—also the Benelux and Scandinavian countries which have some dairy products surpluses—to pool their supplies.

Soviet Russia would even be entitled to contribute, if it has the surpluses it claims.

But the great bulk would come from the U.S.

One curious angle on this Eisenhower-Nixon plan is that Congress has had before it for more than a year a Democratic "Food For Peace" plan on which action has been stalled.

This was primarily the brain child of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D.-Minn.) who has been talking about using America's food surpluses as a force for freedom since 1957.

In a St. Paul speech, Dec. 9, 1958, Humphrey said, "My goal is to use food for peace . . . to fulfill the Biblical mandate to feed the hungry and heal the sick." A month later, the phrase "food for peace" appeared in President Eisenhower's State of the Union message to Congress, but it was not followed up.

The next April, Humphrey incorporated his ideas in an "International Food For Peace" bill. Fourteen Democratic Senators and Sen. Frank Carlson (D. Kan.) joined Humphrey as cosponsors.

The bill was revised and reported out by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in August, 1959, after the Eisenhower administration's State, Agriculture and International Cooperation Administration officials testified they did not want a long-term program.

Now the administration has come round to it and the new Republican platform adopted at Chicago in July also endorses it.

President Eisenhower made brief reference to it in his message to the special session of Congress just opened.

"I consider it important," the President said, "that Congress approve a resolution endorsing such a program, before the United Nations Assembly convenes." (This will be mid-September.)

But this reference caught Congress by surprise. Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, which handles such things, had never heard of it. Reason was that the resolution hadn't been drafted.

Asst. Sec. of State for Congressional Relations William B. McComber, Jr., says the resolution will be sent to Congress in the next day or so, however. Then the plan can begin to roll.

President Eisenhower feels that he should have the backing of Congress before he presents this idea to the U.N.

The government now has ample authority under Public Law 480—the surplus foods disposal act—to sell U.S. surpluses for hard or soft currencies, barter them away or use them in disaster relief. But to give these supplies away to people who don't have enough to eat and are just plain hungry requires extra legal sanctions.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What is Eric Ambler doing aboard the H.M.S. Bounty?

The selection of the noted spy-thriller author to script the remake of "Mutiny On The Bounty" seems at first glance like monumental miscasting. Yet the British writer has been working on the screenplay since May, 1959, (minus five months of the writers' strike) and is hurrying a polish job so filming can start in Tahiti in October.

He paused from his labors to explain:

"The sea isn't exactly new to me. I did scripts on the 'The Cruel Sea' and 'A Night To Remember.' When I write for the screen, I like to get as far away from my books as possible.

It might be added that another reason for his assignment was to produce the calibre of script which would attract the likes of Marlon Brando to play Fletcher Christian. The device worked, and Brando will climb the rigging as Clark Gable used to do.

The question in the minds of many movie fans is: What can they do with "Mutiny On The Bounty" that wasn't done before?

Ambler's reply: Plenty.

"We're not so much concerned with the mutiny as with what happened afterwards," he said. "Nordhoff and Hall didn't know much about what happened on Pitcairn Island; most of that book was fiction. But the trilogy and the picture stimulated research on the history of Bounty survivors. We have drawn from that."

Ambler has been working in the Woodsy Stone Canyon home he shares with his wife, Joan Harrison, longtime aide of Alfred Hitchcock and producer of his TV show. He still turns out an occasional book; his latest, "Passage of Arms," got enthusiastic reviews.

Why She Never Married Is Her Own Affair, Men

Why do otherwise pleasant and fairly intelligent men, a correspondent asks, feel called upon sooner or later to get around to asking any single woman they meet:

"How does it happen that a good looking woman like you has never married?"

She goes on to say:

"I'm 36 years old, a college graduate, and I hold down a responsible position. I like men and get along well with them—except for that question put to me on an average of once a week, 'How does it happen that . . .?'

"What I can't understand is why men don't realize how rude that question is. To begin with, what makes them think it is any of their business? And when they ask the question, what kind of an answer do they think the unmarried woman can give?

"These same men would be indignant to the point of apoplexy if I should in turn ask them any of the personal questions that might occur to me such as:

"'How did it happen that an intelligent man like you married such a stupid woman?'

"'How does that gracious, lovely wife of yours put up with your arrogance and bad temper?'

"'How come you haven't advanced any further after 15 years with the same firm?'

"'Don't you think you're getting a little old to be flirting with every young stenographer in the office?'

"Now, really, are any of those questions any more rude or any more personal than 'Why haven't you ever married?'

"Can't you, Miss Millett, tell your men readers that no woman likes to be asked why she has never married—even with that 'a good looking woman like you' thrown in?"

I can and I will. Don't ask, men. It really is rude and uncalled for and any unmarried woman has a right to resent it.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's that man again.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev, when unsure of the outcome, acts like an early bather sticking one toe in the water to see if it's cold before diving in.

Back in 1959 he put out a feeler for an invitation to the United States. Once he got it, he came bouncing over. That was last September. Came the spring.

He torpedoed the summit conference, called off President Eisenhower's trip to Russia, and for weeks insulted and belittled the President.

He said he'd never have another summit get-together with Eisenhower. American-Soviet relations took a perilous dive.

This week Khrushchev acted like a man putting out feelers again.

He said he would deem it a great honor to head the Soviet delegation to the United Nations to discuss disarmament in September.

That would bring him here in the midst of the presidential campaign. He didn't say he would come. And, actually, he wouldn't need an invitation if he decided to.

Unlike Moscow, where Eisenhower couldn't go without an invitation, Khrushchev could go unasked to New York since the U.N. is an international arena.

By talking wistfully of the idea of coming, instead of saying he would, Khrushchev gave himself a chance to see what Eisenhower thought of it.

(Earlier Khrushchev had suggested the heads of government discuss disarmament—a situation which would be a kind of world-wide summit conference — although the United States had rejected that proposal.)

But, while Eisenhower at his news conference Wednesday avoided saying he would meet with Khrushchev at the U.N. to discuss disarmament, he also avoided saying he wouldn't.

So, at this moment the idea of the two men's getting together once again is nebulous.

Nothing would please the Russian better, if he did make the long journey to New York, than to be invited to visit some of the Latin American countries.

So far Fidel Castro's Cuba is the only one which has shown any enthusiasm for that notion.

Just why Khrushchev would want to come back to this country whose President he ridiculed just a few months ago is not clear.

All kinds of guesses can be made:

1. He's getting worried about the serious downturn in American-Soviet relations and would like a chance to patch them up with Eisenhower.

2. His visit would be just a propaganda stunt.

3. He might even want to stick his nose into the American elections.

But a man with his unpredictable temper-tantrums would be a hazardous kind of visitor.

If he got displeased with the United States position on disarmament, he might start insulting Eisenhower all over again, but this time in the President's own country.

If the two men met and worked out some agreement on disarmament—a highly unlikely prospect—it would be a big boost to the Republicans' campaign.

Investigate Nursing Homes Before Placing a Loved One

BY MARIE DAERR

How do you tackle the task of picking a nursing home—a task that faces many families when, at last, an elderly relative no longer can be cared for properly at home?

A letter from Mrs. R. T. W., a reader in a large city, gives some experience-packed advice on this subject, then tells what members of the patient's family can do to make the situation as happy as possible for the elderly person.

She is a former executive housekeeper in a hospital, and at one time directed a small hospital for a group of doctors.

"When my mother was 88, I found that, in spite of all kinds of help, she no longer could live alone in the big home she loved," she writes. "She had convalesced fairly well after a broken hip, but she refused to use her walker.

"She lost her appetite. She wouldn't read or sew. She needed company her own age. I began the hunt for a nursing home where she would be well-cared for and happy."

Mrs. R. T. W. hired a cab—and looked over 17 nursing homes. She found that some of the highest priced were the worst.

Here are some of her tips on what to look for:

"Look for cleanliness in kitchens, as well as patients' rooms. Note odors of improperly cared-for toilets.

"Note sounds. One of the highest-priced homes had many patients, but was deadly quiet. This means sedation in too many cases. It is easier to give sedatives than to entertain patients.

"Do the patients have freedom of movement? Is there a proper general lounge? Are games and TV available?

"How about visiting hours? It's easy to clean up the house and the patients for specified, infrequent visiting hours. I picked a home where I could visit my mother at any time.

"Check on licensing. Note the attitudes of the employes. Ask your doctor if he has heard of the home."

What about the family's role?

"Visit the patient and make him feel he is no burden," Mrs. R. T. W. suggests. "Give him attractive clothes and a bright blanket or afghan.

"A large cake for birthdays or holidays makes it possible for the patient to play host—and boosts his ego.

"Be sure to send frequent notes, cards and little gifts.

"Ideas are a bird feeder and food, correspondence and postal cards with stamps, snapshots, pocket magazines, a pot of bulbs the patient can watch develop, toilet water, soap and powder.

"It's wise to have the patient's own doctor make regular calls. And give the home permission to call him, as well as dentist and eye specialist, when necessary."

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

The Art of Complaining

By Ralph W. Loew, D.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Among the activities of life requiring discipline is the fine art of complaining.

All of us know the professional gripers. They get things off of their chests and onto the sensitive consciences of their neighbors at regular intervals.

Most of them are as graceful and artistic about it as an elephant in a pansy bed.

Yet there is the need to complain. I have a long list to suggest in case you're interested. It wouldn't start or end your day with brightness, for you have your list, too. Perhaps you remember Will Carlton's lines:

"I don't complain of Betsy
Or any of her acts,
Exceptin' when we've quarreled
And told each other facts."

The professional complainer squelches the joy of any gathering. John Bright wrote of some 19th century Tories, "Had they been in the wilderness they would have complained about the Ten Commandments." I know their 20th century brothers. They complain for the sheer sadistic, distorted, illogical fun of complaining.

That's why complaining needs to be examined constructively. Nothing can be more silly than sentimental saccharine pretense that all's well when it isn't.

The great men of the world have been the great complainers. No mere positive thinking would do. They weren't taken in by pretenses; they weren't deluded into thinking that all was well when it wasn't; they never aspired to settle for the "status quo."

Instead they complained loudly about taxes or slavery or persecution or tyranny or superstition. They protested at the risk of security. They identified themselves with a problem and solution until it became their vocation.

The mark of the great complaint is the mark of progress.

Before a person complains and resembles the squeaky hinge looking for some kind of selfsustaining lubrication, he ought to look at his own reasons for complaining. Who profits by it? What comes of it?

Read the complaints of the great prophets, the great religious leaders, the great social thinkers and the great humanitarians. You will know that they are singing a song, a sad song, but there is a lilt about it. It is far more than personal griping.

There is an art to complaining. It is the mark of the intelligent, understanding person whose mind and heart is filled with the perilous problems of the world and yet is ready to meet them.

It is the unwillingness to yield to mere bitterness or wet-blanket thinking. It is the ability to see evil and deal with it instead of running away from it.

Shakespeare immortalized a gripe when he had Hamlet say, "O cursed spite, that ever I was born to set things right."

Jesus dealt with the problems with that exquisite ability to see the evil and yet know the reality of how to handle the problem. For He quietly said:

"In this world you will have tribulation, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

Watermelon Ice Is Sweet Dessert That's Low-Calorie

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise
Food and Markets Editor

Watermelons are in big supply—even more in your markets today than at this time last year, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The larger size melons are the most popular because they have more flesh that is free from seeds.

Here are useful tips when buying watermelon, a fruit low in calories yet sweet to the taste:

The essential factor of quality is maturity. As a rule, ripe melons of good quality are firm, symmetrical in shape, fresh and attractive in appearance and of good color. The color may vary from a deep solid green to a gray, according to the variety, with the underside yellowish. Look for a bloom over the surface of the rind, giving a somewhat velvety appearance. Generally, such melons will have a crispy, sweet and juicy flesh, although sweetness largely depends on the variety.

Every part of the watermelon has its pleasing uses. Pickle the rind for a delicately tart relish, or candy the rind for a subtly flavored tidbit. In some parts of the world, the seeds are roasted, salted and eaten like nuts.

Watermelon Ice

Chill cubes of watermelon until icy cold. Prepare "watermelon ice" as follows: Combine 1 quart watermelon juice (easily extracted from ripe melons) with ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup sugar and the juice of one lemon. Pour this mixture into refrigerator trays and place in freezer until a soft, icy firmness forms. To serve, place four or five of the chilled melon cubes in a clear sherbet glass and add peaks of the watermelon ice. Garnish with a sprig of fresh mint or a twist of lemon.

Monday's Dinner: Cold sliced pot roast, pickle relish potato cakes, creamed new cabbage, warm rolls, butter or margarine, watermelon ice, coffee, tea, milk.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

CORN DISAPPEARING AT RECORD RATE

Our big stocks of corn have been the subject of many articles and speeches. Hardly anyone seems to be aware of the more important fact that the corn is being used at a record-busting rate. This high use is all the more significant because farmers are reported to be feeding the smallest number of hogs since 1953.

Last October 1 the carryover of old corn was officially estimated at 1,530 million and the 1959 crop (grain only) at 3,989 million bushels. That made a total supply of 5,520 million bushels. At that time it was widely proclaimed that the carryover of old corn this fall would be 600 million bushels larger than last year.

One major development since last fall would seem to have added even more to the carryover: instead of increasing hog production as was then expected, farmers cut the 1960 spring pig crop by 16 percent

But we now have strong evidence that the addition to the carryover will be much less than the 600 million bushels claimed earlier. Total disappearance of corn from last October 1 to July 1 is officially estimated at 2,958 million bushels, over 9 percent more than a year gefore. These increases in disappearance appear to be the result of several conditions: (1) The quality of much of the 1959 crop was low, (2) farmers fed 8 to 20 percent more cattle and (3) more broilers were produced.

This high rate of disappearance left 2,563 million bushels on hand July 1, or only 355 million more than a year before.

Disappearance of corn in the current fourth quarter will surely be at least as large as it was a year ago. We are still using the same crop of corn. Farmers are feeding 4 percent more cattle than they fed last year. And they are still producing more broilers.

On the other side of the balance, farmers apparently have around 16 percent fewer hogs to feed out than they had a year ago. But the favorable prices for hogs are encouraging them to feed to heavier weights than they did last summer.

A year ago this quarter, the disappearance of corn was 678 million bushels. In the present quarter it seems likely to be around 700 million bushels. If so, total disappearance for the year will be close to 3,660 million bushels. And the addition to the carryover will be only about 330 million bushels, or a little more than half as much as was widely forecast last fall.

The indicated disappearance of corn this year is 31 percent greater than the five-year average. It is greater than production in any other year except 1959. It is only 1 percent short of the official July forecast of the 1960 crop for grain.

Many conditions will favor a rapid disappearance of the 1960 crop: (1) In heavy livestock-feeding areas the crop is late. (2) Beef cattle numbers and poultry production are increasing. (3) Hog prices are good and farmers have reported intentions to increase sow farrowings beginning this fall. And (4) the supplies of oats and barley are a little smaller than they were last year.

ROAD DRAGGING DAYS AT REES

When Ernest Jones, who lives west of Jacksonville, came to the Morgan county fair he visited the steam engines exhibited by Milford Rees and left with Rees a photograph taken about 50 years ago.

The pictures show Rees and Jones dragging the so-called road in front of the old Rees Station general store. Rees is leaning against "Old Jack" and Jones is near the four horse drag. Between them stands the late Chris Voss of Franklin.

"Old Jack had quite a story, and it's a shame he couldn't talk," Rees said.

"My father sold him for $150 to Charley Beerup, who was a horse and mule buyer at Franklin. Charley took him to St. Louis, across the Mississippi river, and sold him at the big mule auction.

"About two or three years later a stray mule was standing near the barn. Father said, 'That looks like Jack.' Father opened the barn door and Jack went back to his old stall and began eating hay.

"Father advertised, according to the stray law, in the Springfield, Jacksonville and Franklin papers, but didn't get a nibble, so Jack lived with us until he died, eight or ten years later. Nobody had any idea where he'd been. Neighbors used to borrow him from time to time, and whenever they got through with him they'd just turn him loose and he'd walk home. He was some mule."

New Plan Book For Sheepmen Released

URBANA — The Mid-West Plan Service has released another in its series of equipment plan books for livestock growers—this one written especially for sheepmen.

University of Illinois ag engineer Don Jedele says the book contains more than 80 plans and diagrams representing the latest ideas in home-made sheep equipment.

Typical plans in the book include sorting and loading chutes, self-feeders, waterers, lamb bunks and creeps, stock guards, corrals and portable dipping vats.

As an added feature, the book also gives a number of feedlot layouts designed for top sheep production efficiency.

The sheep equipment book is the third in a series of equipment plan books for livestock owners. Other plan books are available on swine and beef and dairy equipment.

The books sell for $1.00 each. You can get copies from your county farm adviser or from the University of Illinois Department of Agricultural Engineering in Urbana.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

Beef cattle researchers from 37 states, the United States Department of Agriculture, Argentina, Canada, England and New Zealand congregated at Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, Okla., on July 25-27 for a joint meeting of researchers from the north-central, western and southern sections of the United States.

Attending from Dixon Springs was George Cmarik, who represented the University of Illinois and its beef breeding project of selection for rapid gains and early fattening.

The beef breeding program was organized on a regional basis soon after World War II. The purpose of the program is to study the problems of beef cattle improvement and breeding. Each state in the three regions has breeding projects in this program.

Silage-Making Time

August 1 marked the start of silage-making on the Station. Corn that was planted a couple of months ago through the wheat drill in seven-inch rows is now being cut and stored in a trench silo. Today this corn, which was very heavily nitrated and is standing about shoulder high and as thick as a good stand of sudan grass, is being mowed, windrowed and cured for a short time before being run through the forage chopper. There is no grain on the corn, so for all practical purposes we might call this a crop of grass silage.

When this crop is in the silo, we will soon be ready to start making our regular corn silage and reseeding new pasture.

Silos

Judging from inquiries we are receiving, many farmers will soon be in the silage-making business. The inquiries usually deal with plans for trench and bunker silos. Here on the Station we have several trench silos that have proved very serviceable.

In planning a trench silo, remember that good drainage is essential. A hillside location is the most trouble-free, as the bottom of the silo will open on a slope. Also, pick a convenient location near the barn or the place where the cattle are fed. Plan the silo size to fit the herd. At least a 12-inch slice of silage should be fed each week during the winter, and a 3- to 4-inch slice from the silage face must be removed daily during warm weather, to prevent spoilage.

To help you estimate the size of silo needed for your herd, figure that 1 cubic foot of settled silage will weigh about 35 pounds, or approximately the amount fed each day to each cow. With a 30-cow herd feeding 175 days, you would need a trench silo 8 feet deep, 10 feet wide at the bottom, 14-feet wide at the top and 60 feet long.

Since 1950, 51 Illinois counties have dropped in population, while the other 51 have gained. The state's largest cities and surrounding counties have received 96 percent of the total population increase.

Cattle Feeders Day At U.I. September 2

The University of Illinois College of Agriculture announces that its annual Cattle Feeders Day will be held Friday, Sept. 2.

More than 1,000 persons are expected to attend this event, which attracts cattlemen from all over the state and from surrounding states as well.

The program gets under way at 10 a.m. CDT with tours of the beef cattle barns. Visitors can study feeding trials in progress and look over the University's purebred beef cattle.

During the noon hour a barbecue lunch will be served in the Stock Pavilion.

At 1:15 the afternoon program begins with reports of several major research studies completed this past year.

L. H. Simerl, U. of I. agricultural economist, will discuss the beef cattle outlook. And W. C. Whetsell, an Oklahoma rancher, will wrap up the afternoon program with "A Rancher's Look Into the Future."

All interested persons are invited to attend.

The total 1960 calf crop is officially estimated at 41,646,000 head.

Youths Attend Forestry Camp

Four boys from this area were among the 64 youths, from 55 counties, who attended the Farm Boys Forestry Camp at Lake Frankfort this week.

At the camp were Thomas R. Spech, Jr., of Versailles; Paul H. Rowe of Carrollton, Ronnie Leavell of route 3, Winchester, and Danny Crow, route 2, Franklin.

The camp was sponsored by the Illinois Technical Forestry association in conjunction with the Illinois Agricultural association and numerous other organizations. The seven day session ended Saturday.

The camp includes demonstrations in woodland management, lectures on tree and wood identification, classes on protecting forests, and discussions of wood use which will be highlighted by a tour of a sawmill.

Daily camp activities will include flag raising ceremonies, recreation periods featuring swimming, classes and quiz periods, organized softball and volleyball, educational movies, flag lowering ceremonies, evening programs and plenty of good meals.

Wednesdoy night's program was a panel discussion led by W. H. Brown, Jr., former Greene county farm adviser, now IAA director of natural resources. W. D. Carter, manager of Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge, spoke Thursday evening and A. R. Gilmore, Dixon Springs Experiment Station, delivered the final address Friday evening.

Find Landlord-Tenant Relations Satisfactory

URBANA—Landlord and tenant relations on east-central Illinois farms are generally satisfactory, a recent University of Illinois survey shows. Among those who answered a question about changing their present leases, 71 per cent expressed satisfaction or further explained their lease arrangements. Only 29 per cent suggested changes.

F. J. Reiss, agricultural economist in charge of the study, reports that, for every farm in this area with a livestock share lease, there were seven with crop-share or crop-share cash leases. But more suggestions were offered for changing the livestock than the crop-share leases. The reason is that livestock leases are more complex and the landlord and tenant must share costs for a greater number of items.

More than twice as many tenants as landlords made suggestions for changing their leases. Generally the tenants wanted the landlords to share more of such costs as combining, hauling grain, shelling and combining corn in the field, crop drying, applying fertilizers, legume and grass seeds, and fuel costs with livestock leases.

Like 5 Year Lease

Tenants wanted more written leases, particularly with elderly landlords whose farms might be involved in estate settlements. They preferred five-year leases. But they were not particularly unhappy with one-year leases if they were automatically renewable and provided for a termination notice of six months or more.

Both tenants and landlords recognized the importance of having a mutual interest in the farm business. Some tenants believed that, if the landlord employed professional farm management services, it would benefit them through greater use of fertilizers, more adequate buildings and higher quality seed.

Fertilizer Problems

Few tenants asked for a reduction in cash rent. But landlords felt that they must have higher cash rents to offset high taxes. Some tenants said they would prefer to make more of their own improvements than pay higher rents, provided they had adequate reimbursement guarantees if they should leave the farm. Since fertilizer can't be removed after it is applied, tenants made a special plea for reimbursement arrangements on costs of this kind.

Good lease forms, such as the ones prepared by the University of Illinois, spell out the answers to many of the questions on which landlord and tenant should agree, Reiss points out. They can go a long way toward improving what already appears to be a very satisfactory land tenure system in Illinois, he concludes.

Some of the world's top soil scientists will tour Illinois farms and examine its soils during mid-August. They will be part of the group attending the International Soil Science Congress in Madison, Wis., from August 15 to 23.

Beginning salaries for University of Illinois agricultural graduates in June average $4,950. The range is $4,000 to $6,000 annually—with the majority between $4,500 and $5,500.

O.K. New Insecticide To Fight Face Flies

Face flies, a new pest in Illinois, are increasing rapidly, reports H. B. Petty of the Illinois Natural History Survey, but a new insecticide has been developed to combat them and it is now appearing on the market.

In his weekly insect survey bulletin Petty writes.

Face flies: This pest is increasing rapidly and it has become quite noticeable that animals are fighting these flies. Face flies resemble house flies but are slightly larger and they cluster tbout the eyes and nostrils of the animals. The eyes water excessively, and the animals bunch up, shake their ears, and rub their heads instead of grazing.

DDVP, 0.2% in a mixture of 75% corn sirup and 25% water has been approved as a bait. Make daily applications with a single six-inch stroke of a small paint brush to the foreheads of cattle. Morning applications of the bait are recommended daily for a two-week period, followed by other applications as needed. When the face flies feed on the bait, the population is soon reduced to non-economic levels. Products conforming to this label are or soon will be on the market.

For best results, use only those DDVP baits specifically labeled for face fly control, Similar products containing DDVP are on the market to be used as house fly baits. Some of these commercially prepared house fly baits contain an added material to extend the shelf-life of the bait. This added material, although not repellent to house flies, repels face flies.

Until DDVP face fly baits become available, apply repellent sprays containing tabatrex or R-326 in combination with pyrethrins to the heads of dairy cattle. Special face-fly-repellent sprays containing these materials are available and may be expected to reduce the fly population 60 to 70 percent.

For beef cattle, use a backrubber containing either 5 percent DDT or toxaphene in oil. Success with backrubbers will depend on whether the animals can smear a liberal supply of the chemical on their heads. Backrubbers constructed with an outer layer of canvas, burlap, or cloth, as opposed to metal, would be best for this purpose. Allow 30 days to elapse between this treatment and slaughter of the animals. When DDVP face fly baits become available, they can be used on both dairy and nondairy animals that can be handled.

Rockets And Space—

Flew X-15 Before It Was Built

By Walter B. Hendrickson J..

The X-15 rocket plane that, on August 4, topped all records for manned flight was "flown" 350 times before the plane was ever built. This is one of the reasons that it handled so well, for pilot Walker, at a speed of 2,150 miles an hour.

The Navy Human Centrifuge at the U.S. Naval Air Development Center in Johnsville, Pa., was used on these "flights." This giant machine simulated (copied) the flight pattern that the X-15 would have when it was built.

The picture at the top of this article shows Mr. L. Passavant pressing the starting lever to begin one of these tests.

Three programs simulating the performance of the X-15 were carried out. The first was in April, 1957, in cooperation with North American Aviation, Inc. The cams that then controlled the centrifuge were used for this test. In June, 1957, the centrifuge dynamic control simulation was developed. This system uses an electronic brain to control the centrifuge.

Can Pilot Stand Speed

The first program was designed to find out if the pilot could stand the acceleration expected in extreme conditions during reentry. It was found that if the black-out equipment functioned properly the pilot could remain conscious during these extreme conditions.

However, it isn't enough for the pilot of the X-15 to remain conscious; he must be able to control his plane. So, in December 1957, a centrifuge dynamic control simulation test of the performance of the X-15 was started. This program was carried out in cooperation with National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' Langley Aeronautical Laboratory. This group has since become the foundation of the National Aeronautical and Space Administration (NASA).

For this test a Mockup of the cockpit of the X-15 was provided by North American Aviation, Inc. The Aeronautical Instruments Laboratory assembled an instrument panel for the test. And the facilities of the Aeronautical Computer Laboratory were used to figure out the flight pattern of the X-15.

This pattern was then fed into the electronic computer at Johnsville which used it to control the Centrifuge. The pilot was shown what the centrifuge was doing by messages the instrument panel received from the electronic brain and duly recorded.

The pilot tried to respond to these situations as he would in the X-15. When the pilot moved the mockup controls they sent messages back to the computer. It then changed the motion of the centrifuge to simulate the changes that would have resulted from these actions in the real X-15. These changes were then reported to the pilot by the instrument panel.

CQ Radio Hams—

Experimenting Can Be Fun

By Joseph A. Smith

Last week we suggested that you Radio Hams who find things getting a bit dull can keep up on new radio ideas by reading the ham magazines. Another way is to experiment.

At first you as the experimenter will start out building something just as the book printed it, in time you will advance to the point where you will take part of one diagram that you like and add it to something else you like from another, etc. Finally you will end up with your ideal arrangement for the particular piece of gear that you want in the shack.

Now, this business of borrowing an idea from here and there can be made to work, but problems of adjustment and probable changes to make them work together properly will soon crop up. Here that store house of background knowledge will eventually (after a suitable period of trial and error) produce results.

The final stage of advancement is when you can design, build, and de-bug your own gear. You alone know the thrill of seeing a brain child of your own work!

Saves Money Too

Why is all this necessary when good gear is available commercially? Well, if you are blessed with a fat pocket-book, fine; if not, then a little use of the old head, some figuring, some experimenting, etc., can produce quite useful gear out of that supply of spare parts lying around the house gathering dust.

Just one example: A total long run investment of say $50 to $75 (or less depending on the Junk Box) can produce a Stereo receiving set-up if you know how to do it. Show me where you can buy that commercially!

Here are some practical examples.

When you were first interested in amateur radio you might have visited a local Ham (and I don't mean the cooking kind), his array of fine looking (?) gear was something like overwhelming to you and a deep mystery and a challenge.

Perhaps you built a small radio receiver—one of two tuber—probably either from a kit or from simple plans already figured out for you in a book or magazine; you simply followed directions in building it—an application of physical energy, but no application of "figuring it out." Still, that is the natural thing. Perhaps you built your first rig from similar plans or built a commercial kit, or (if the pocket book permitted) bought a piece of commercial gear.

Perhaps in time you realized that the rig didn't contain all the things in it that you'd like to have in one. If it was a commercial piece of gear probably you wouldn't want to change it (this would lower its resale value), so perhaps you decided to build a rig yourself and use all the things in it that you wanted.

Getting More Fun On Outings

By Joseph A. Smith

Part 3: Clothes For Jaunts

Last Sunday we said that you will want to take along a change of clothes—the no-iron kind—on that hake or bike trip. Here are some more hints on clothes for your jaunt.

Be sure that your hiking or outing shoes fit properly, and aren't too tight or rub. Need I remind you that a tight shoe (or shoes) can produce a very sore blister on the heel or ankle?

On an outing of any length it is wise to take along two pairs of shoes—a spare pair besides those you're wearing. Wet shoes are murder on ankles, so being able to change your shoes is sure welcome at that time. (Yes, that is the voice of experience speaking!)

Remember Swim Suit

In the summer season a swim suit is a welcome addition; during the Fall or Spring season a warm coat and sweater and gloves are often welcome. A wrap is always a good idea for high altitudes.

On the other hand, in warm or hotter areas, need I say that cool sport clothes are required? Still, if the area to be visited is infested with flies or mosquitoes or you are apt to run into at least some such varmints, then it is never wise to wear short sleeved shirts, etc. In such areas a bottle of mosquito repellent is a most welcome item!

Being more specific, what might you take along on a somewhat more extended outing? Well, as many of the following as would be useful for the particular outing in mind. (Forgive the repetition, but clothes over and above what you actually need only adds to weight. So, again take only what you actually will need.)

Suggested list:

Two pairs of sport shoes good for hiking.

One swim suit.

Three suits of underwear. (Shorts and undershirts for boys).

Three extra pairs of socks. A small mending outfit will be handy.)

Three sport shirts (one dress shirt might be included if needed; otherwise, just outdoor type shirts.)

Two sports pants (one dress pair might be included; otherwise, just outdoor type pants.)

One pair of blue jeans for riding and other rough times.

What do I carry on my person, you ask? Well, as little as possible; but here are a few possible suggestions:

One cap and dark glasses.

Two handkerchieds (men's type.) These outings are no place for those light, pretty things!

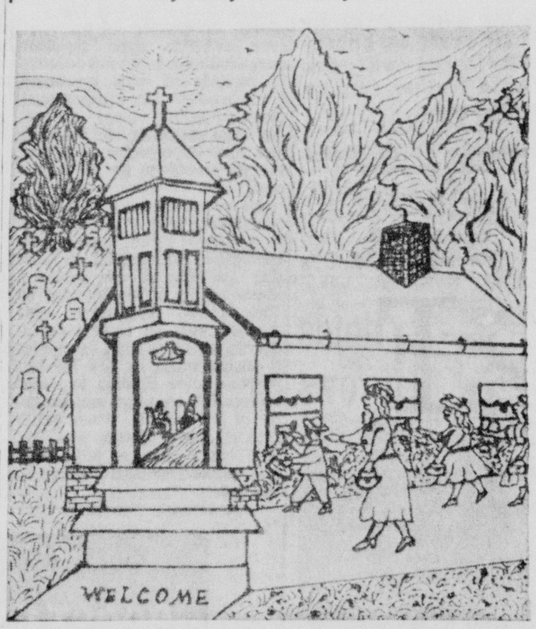
One raincoat (the easy fold-up type.)

The cyclist or motorcycle rider will possibly want a rider's belt if the ride is in excess of say a hundred miles or so. (Again, the voice of experience!)

This is enough for this time; more next time about the accessory kit and cook kit.

Vacation Time Fun

By Mary Pence Claywell



Part 13: Back To City

It was a beautiful morning when Tommy bade good-bye to his Grandfather's farm, and he and Mom headed back for the city.

Grandma and Gramp stood on the kitchen steps and waved until the car disappeared over a rise in the road.

"Drat the sun," said Gramp, "it's shining right in my eyes; makes 'em water too!"

"Oh they'll be alright as soon as the dust settles, Pa," answered Grandma as she wiped her own on the tail of her apron

Tommy was having a little trouble with his too, about the same time but, "Sure," he pondered, "life has its little moments of sadness and a few tears now and then; but as Dad says "that way we appreciate the joys more when they come along and after all . . . I'll be back, that's for sure!"

The next day was Sunday, and without my telling you, I'm sure you know what Tommy did.

He attended Sunday school and church, and he felt so happy when they sang his favorite hymn:

"Jesus loves me, this I know,
For the Bible tells me so;
Little ones to Him belong,
They are weak, but He is strong!"

"It's wonderful to know that," said Tommy to himself; and as his ears caught the sound of bells chiming out their call to worship in other churches across the city, Tommy felt very thankful that he lived in a free land where every person can worship in his own way in the church of his own choice.

"Anyway," said Tomy, "as Gramp said 'we are one people with one God, all looking towartl the same goal,' and the Good Book says something about 'where a few are gathered together in my Name, I am in their midst;' and I'm sure He is with His children all across the city this morning."

"I guess," Tommy went on pondering to himself, "If I am alive a hundred years from now, I'll still be remembering things Gramp has told me; good old Gramp!"

Just as soon as worship was over, Tommy joined a group of his young friends, and you can be very sure he had a lot to tell the boys about his vacation on the farm and the fun he had . . . and they also had a lot to tell Tommy about the fun they had been having in the city. You can well imagine, boys and girls, they were really telling some tall tales about their experiences!

Wonder World—

Is That A Moth Or Butterfly?

By Rip Barnsdall

What To Look For

Sometimes it is hard to tell whether the insect you are looking at is a moth or a butterfly. Here are some differences you can look for to help you distinguish between a moth and a butterfly.

Most butterflies love the sunshine. They will usually fly about only during the daytime.

Most moths are night flying insects. Some kinds begin flying at twilight, and some kinds even are about during the day. Generally, however, butterflies are day insects, moths night insects.

Butterflies are usually more brightly colored than moths. Butterflies have slender bodies, while moths have thick, furry, stubby bodies.

Butterflies have feelers at the ends of which are little knobs. Moths have feathery or thread-like feelers.

A butterfly will usually hold its wings straight up over its body when it is sitting or resting. A moth will usually spread out its wings in a flattened position.

One group of insects called the skippers are generally classified as butterflies, although they have some of the characteristics of moths. Some scientists think that the skippers may be thought of as cousins to both butterflies and moths.

It would take only 65 years for the entire population of Andorra to emigrate to the United States. Its population is 6,500; its American immigration quota is 100 per year.

LETS GO BIRDING—

Finds How Bird Knows Mother

By David Mudgett

Part 2: Seeing Is Believing

Last week we saw how Dr. Lorenz studied geese and became so friendly with them that they began to think he was a sort of super-goose. Now we see how some of the goslings (baby ducks) even thought of him as "mother!"

All these social problems interest Dr. Lorenz but he studies much more than that.

He was one of the first to discover "imprinting" which interests many phychologists today.

He found that at a certain time during the first day after hatching the goslings will follow the first living thing they see. In nature the first thing they see is their mother or father and this teaches them what species they belong to.

Dr. Lorenz's incubator hatched birds saw him first so they followed him around as their "mother."

Recently other students have found that imprinting is strongest when the young bird has obstacles to overcome while following.

I am reminded of those baby wood ducks at Bath who leap out of their high nest on command, bounce on the ground and then follow the mother duck in a long procession across the park, over the highway and down to the river! What powerful imprinting this must be!

Other scientists have studied pigeons, ducks, gulls, weaver birds and just about every other kind of bird. This font of learning is far from empty.

The careful observer who studies the birds for many years, whether it be a single pair, a single species or all the birds in a single area, can still add to our knowledge of the world we live in and perhaps ourselves.

TEXAS SILENCER

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)— State Rep. Howard Reppert of Des Moines relates this one:

While in Dalhart, Tex., recently he stopped in a supermarket, saw a display of huge watermelons, and asked a clerk: "How much are those Iowa cucumbers?"

"I'm afraid you have made a mistake, sir," said the clerk. "Those are Texas peas."

THE GOOD EARTH—Mighty farm machines thunder through nearly all America's wheat fields at harvest time. But reaping the grain is still a picturesque horse-and-wagon job on one spread near Halstead, Kan. Farmer Bud Westerman (pitching wheat atop the wagon) is one of the last farmers in the area to cut wheat and harvest it the old fashioned way.

Scottish Farm Girl Guest In Calhoun County

HARDIN—Miss Rhoda Campbell of Scotland, an International Farm Youth Exchangee, was guest of honor at a gathering Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Schudel and daughters west of Hardin. The Schudels are among the host farm families Miss Campbell is visiting during her six-month stay in the United States under the I.F.Y.E. program. She was in Washington, D.C. and Oregon state before coming to Illinois where she will have been the guest of four families when she returns to her native Scotland in November.

Miss Campbell spoke briefly to the 35 guests at the Schudel home Tuesday night, explaining the I.F.Y.E. program and telling about her home, and then showed colored slides of her family's 2500 acre farm, and neighboring farms, and of the native stock, such as Ayrshire and Galloway cattle and Scottish Black Face sheep. Miss Campbell, who is a teacher in the village school near her family home, answered the many questions put to her by the guests concerning agriculture in Scotland, her home life, the Scottish tartans (which Americans mistakenly call "plaids,") schools, methods of heating and cooking in the rural areas, and social life.

The Right 'Groundwork' Pays Off With a More Profitable Yield

Ed Garlich, Elliott State Bank's Farm Manager, and George Trull, Morgan County Farm Adviser, discuss a soil test report on one of the many farms in the Jacksonville area managed by Elliott State Bank. On all farms managed by the Bank, planning the crop program starts from the ground up with the right plant food based on an accurate soil test.

Ed Garlich of Elliott State Bank knows soil conditions, soil needs, and soil productive capacity in our area. He also backs up his long years of experience with scientific testing and analysis. He knows that good "groundwork" pays off in bigger, more profitable yields. Therefore he and the tenant operators select plant foods carefully, making sure that the soil will have the right balance of nutrients.

This means a better income for the owner, the tenant, and the people of the Jacksonville area. It is one of the many reasons more and more people entrust the management of their farms to Elliott State Bank when they are unable to play an active role. They know their income will benefit from farming know-how, as well as financial know-how and that the farmer's partner in progress is . . .

TWO MINUTE MYSTERY

THE CASE OF
THE LEAKY RADIATOR

By Donald J. Sobol

Mary Slater waited until they had reached the lonely seven-mile stretch of road north of Carsonville.

"Ed," she cried. "The motor's overheating!"

Her husband shot a glance at the instrument panel. With a grunt of astonishment, he pulled the brand new car off the road. He had the hood up and was unscrewing the radiator cap when Mrs. Slater reached his side.

She swung the piece of heavy pipe with every ounce of strength.

Ed Slater sagged over the radiator. Then he slowly slid down the front of the car. The radiator cap dropped from his hand and rolled under the rear axle.

An hour later the tear-streaked woman supplied the police with a very complete account of the killing. If her tale neglected to include the detail that she had drained the radiator the previous night, it did not otherwise want for facts.

"Ed had just unscrewed the radiator cap when this tramp stepped out of the bushes behind him," she sobbed. "He shoved the end of a piece of pipe against Ed's back, like a hold-up man. Ed used to be a boxer. I suppose he thought he could overpower any thief.

"I started to open the door to get out and help when the thief struck Ed. He took his wallet and raced off."

"Was the thief wearing gloves?" asked Sheriff Monahan.

"Why, I think so. I'm not really sure. Everything happened so fast," answered Mrs. Slater.

"Ed had just unscrewed the radiator cap when this tramp stepped out of the bushes behind him."

"Of course you are holding her for murder," said Dr. Haledjian after the sheriff had recounted the story.

WHY?

Sitting in the car, she could not have seen any of the things she related. The hood was up, remember?

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

Folks these days are getting more and more aware that the cooler you are in hot weather, the better work you do. According to a recent article, the latest folks to find this out are the dairy farmers. It's not themselves they want to cool down, but their cows. It seems that dairy scientists have found that overheated bovines give less milk than cooler cows. In experimenting with the effects of heat on milk production, they discovered that dropping the temperature from 95 to 75 degrees increased the output of cow-juice as much as 35%. Now the scientists are urging dairy farmers to install air conditioners in the barns, or at least put in some large electric fans. The whole idea of heat affecting the cows' work makes sense when you think about it. Folks have been using hot milk to help them relax for years.

Little Christian Groups Lead Big Denominations In Growth

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

The little denominations are leading the field today in growth among American Christian bodies.

In fact, the much-heralded upsurge in church affiliation in recent years has been most sharply in the simple, relatively small, gospel-preaching groups, rather than in the old-line, major denominations.

It is "the most extraordinary religious phenomenon of our time," says the Rev. Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, president of Union Theological Seminary.

A check of statistics shows that 12 of the newer, evangelical groups have expanded an average 88 per cent in the last decade, while 12 of the larger, traditional denominations have grown an average 21 per cent.

Among the major bodies, the fastest growth has been among those that hold to the strictest line in doctrine, a quality also typical of the smaller, gospel groups.

"The more conservative groups," says church historian Richard C. Wolf, of Oberlin College, Ohio, "have had greater success in enlisting members than have the more liberal groups."

For example, the biggest gains among major denominations in the last 10 years have been by the Roman Catholics, up 53 per cent; Mormons and Missouri Synod Lutherans, both up 37 per cent; Southern Baptists, up 32 per cent; Episcopalians, up 29 per cent.

The most striking increases for the 1950-60 period, however, have been in the smaller "old-time religion" groups, sometimes called fundamentalists or evangelicals.

"Evangelical claims are being reasserted today with a vigor and wideness surprising to most interpreters of contemporary religious life," says the Rev. Dr. Carl F. H. Henry, of Washington, D.C., editor of "Christianity Today."

He said the movement, once caricatured as anti-intellectual," is acquiring not only greater strength, but more scholarly stature.

Dr. Arnold W. Hearn, of Lawrenceville, N.J., Union Seminary professor-on-leave, says "fundamentalism may just possibly be moving toward a place of much greater influence than it has heretofore occupied in American Protestantism."

In membership advances in the past decade, the Churches of Christ have gone up more than 100 per cent to 1,750,000 members. Other percentage gains by evangelical groups include:

United Pentecostals, up 600 per cent; Assembly of God, up 75; Pentecostal Church of God, up 75; Pentecostal Holiness, up 58; Church of God, up 40; Nazarenes, up 39; Seventh-day Adventists, up 29.

Most of these groups are comparatively small, but there are about 200 of them, ranging widely from the emotional Pentecostals to the decorous Adventists.

"Until lately other Protestants regarded the movement as a temporary and passing phenomenon, not worth much attention," Dr. Van Dusen said. "Now there is a growing serious recognition of its true dimensions."

EAST USES TEN TO SET SOUTH

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written For NEA

East had a most unappetizing hand with one redeeming feature. It did hold one honor—the ten of spades.

Opening lead—♥2

Most players when they hold such a collection of trash pay no attention to anything except to get on to the next deal and some better cards but this East used that ten spot to tremendous advantage.

South won the opening trump lead in his own hand and promptly led the three of clubs. West's ten forced dummy's king and a second club was played. West won and led a third club which South ruffed. South led the queen of diamonds. West won with the ace and returned a diamond to South's king. Now South drew the two remaining trumps and led a diamond to the jack.

The hand was now stripped of clubs and diamonds and South was ready for the spade suit. He led dummy's five spot and here is where East got full value from that ten spot. He put it right on the five and South's goose was cooked. If South played the eight East would hold the trick and lead another spade.

South did play the queen with a resigned shrug of his shoulders. West won with the king and led back the jack and south was down.

Just let East play a low spade and South would have played the eight spot. West would be in the lead with nothing to do except concede the rest of the tricks.

COMMUTER CAN'T WIN

WESTVILLE, N. J. (AP)—For a year Shirley Wagner, 36, battled the traffic between his home here and his job at an iron company across the Delaware River.

Then he decided to commute in his brother's outboard motorboat. The first day he made excellent time on the mile and a half trip, arriving at the plant 10 minutes early.

But at quitting time he went back to the tree where he tied the boat. The craft's new $100 engine was missing.

He told his story to detectives, picked up his oars and rowed home.

Auto Hits Train At Crossing; Fog Is Blamed

BEARDSTOWN—Police Officer Gale B. Avery, driving his own car east on 15th street, crashed into a freight train being pulled across the 15th street crossing by a switch engine Friday morning at 3:25 a.m. Fog was blamed.

Avery sustained a swollen nose, but no other injuries. He received medical care, but did not enter the hospital.

His 1960 Chevrolet was towed from the scene of the accident in which the front of the car was smashed in and the radiator busted.

The fifth freight car from the switch engine, which was hit by Avery's car, received only minor damages. An air bleeding rod was reported broken.

In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Doris Day is a rarity in Hollywood — a happy actress.

"If my job ever makes me unhappy, I'll quit," says the bubbling singer-actress. "I'd quit tomorrow if I found myself worrying about my career."

What's the secret of Doris' glow?

"I have enthusiasm about my job. I work hard. Then when I rest, I rest hard. Fortunately I have a family — husband Martin Melcher and son Terry — who understand me and who cooperate beautifully."

Her happiness even affects her leading men. When she made "Pillow Talk" there was so much fun on the set that Doris, Melcher, Rock Hudson, Tony Randall, Producer Ross Hunter and others formed a club called "The Crescents."

"We all hated to see the picture finish, so we decided to keep the group intact. We have barbecues, swimming parties and lots of fun."

Doris, although one of the biggest stars in the business, has shied away from the tinsel life of the movie colony. Her idea of a vacation — and one she will soon take — is a motor drive through New England. Melcher is from North Adams, Mass.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Hollywood producers are always warning — Don't come to Hollywood. Let Hollywood find you.

While dozens of beauties around town toil as car hops and waitresses sweating out the big break, Producer Joe Pasternak plucked one of the leads for his "Where the Boys Are" out of a college play 2,500 miles from here.

Paula Prentiss — her name until a few weeks ago was Paula Ragusa — was a graduate student in Northwestern's school of drama. A talent scout saw her, and now she's under contract to MGM and a star in her first movie. Her parents live in Tulsa, Okla.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Donald O'Connor says he had a happier childhood than most kids born backstage in a trunk.

On the "Cry For Happy" set, O'Connor was reminiscing about the time the O'Connor family played the Chicago World's Fair for two years.

"I was seven at the time," he recalls, 'and our family were the headliners at the Irish village of the fair. Next door was the midget village. I spent all my time there playing in their little houses, driving their little cars and eating at their little tables. I thought I was the luckiest kid in the world in those days. Maybe I was."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It may come as a shock to the Bel-Air sophisticates but there is only one major star in town whose name alone on the marquee can assure boxoffice success.

That's Jerry Lewis.

More shocking in the face of Hollywood's preoccupation with sex and violence is Lewis' proud boast that he gears all his movies solely to the family and small fry trade.

There are other stars in the top ten who draw, but they must be surrounded by all star casts and a good picture.

Jerry came out with "The Bellboy," a movie which has no story, no plot and in which the title character played by Jerry speaks only two lines. Its local opening recently broke the all-time record for any movie in the history of Paramount—the studio where the late Cecil B. De Mille used to make his blockbusters.

One producer, not from Paramount, says Lewis is the only surefire boxoffice draw left in an industry that used to have dozens.

"He's like Harold Lloyd and Chaplin used to be in the old days," says the producer, "and his only competition is Walt Disney and Tarzan."

Since the first Martin and Lewis picture, Jerry has never been out of the top ten boxoffice. When the team split a few years ago, Joe Pasternak put Dean in a delightful comedy called "10,000 Bedrooms."

Lushly produced and filmed in Rome, the movie got good notices but wretched profits.

"I'll never try to carry a picture by myself again. Give me Sinatra, Wayne or Brando next time out," Dean told his agents.

Jerry stayed solo and zoomed even higher than with his partner.

An exhibitor gives an interesting sidelight: "My theater makes more money off a Jerry Lewis picture than any other. We sell more tickets, more popcorn, more candy and get less squawks from the parents and the churches in the neighborhood."

A Lewis movie costs between $750,000 and $1,250,000. Its gross will hit around eight million.

"The little people all like me," Jerry says. "I make all my pictures for them. They're the most unfickle audience alive. I'm like a serial to them. They want to see the nut's next adventure.

"Even my own kids come home and say, 'Gee, Dad, that Jerry Lewis is sure crazy.'

"When they see me on the screen, I'm not their father. I'm the nut who gets into all kinds of trouble—the trouble kids would like to get into but can't because of strict fathers like me."

Nicklaus, Beman Lead U.S. To 5th Straight Win In Americas Cup

OTTAWA (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Deane Beman wiped out a costly rules infraction with brilliant singles play Friday and led the United States to its fifth straight victory in the Americas Cup amateur golf competition against Canada and Mexico.

The U.S. team won by 1½ points over Canada — 21½ to 20 — as Mexico trailed with 12½ points.

Heading for victory in the alternate-stroke sixsomes this morning —Beman and Nicklaus were forced to sacrifice two sure points when they forfeited five holes after an extra club had been found in Beman's bag, apparently placed there by a caddie who made a mistake.

But the two youngsters made up for that in the afternoon singles when Nicklaus won both his matches and Beman won one and tied another. But the U.S. didn't get the lead until the next-to-last singles match when Don Cherry of Wichita Falls, Tex., scored a two-point triumph over his Canadian and Mexican rivals.

Cherry, who was a replacement for Fr. Frank (Bud) Taylor in Friday's competition, got an assist from Mexico's Hector Alvarez in putting the U.S. ahead. The crooner from Texas defeated Canada's Bob Whlie 2 and 1 and Alvarez 3 and 1. But in the other part of the three-way competition, Alvarez gained a 2 and 1 victory over Wylie.

That meant a gain of two points for the U.S. and none at all for Canada in that threesome.

For the second straight day, Nicklaus, the husky Columbus, Ohio, youth who won the U.S. Amateur championship last fall, played brilliantly in singles after losing in the alternate - stroke matches. He whipped Phil Brownlee of Canada 2 and 1 and Roberto Halpern of Mexico 4 and 3 to add two big points to the U.S. total.

That put his team even with the Canadians after they had trailed by a point at the end of the morning matches. The Canadians moved out in front again when the U.S. captain, Bill Hyndman III of Philadelphia, lost both his matches.

Then Beman came along to make it close again by beating Keith Alexander of Canada 1 up and tying Juan Antonio Estrada of Mexico while Estrada tied Alexander.

Cherry's two-point victory came next. Then in the final match on the course, slender John Konsek of Buffalo, three-time winner of the Big Ten college championship, held Canada's Ron Willey to even terms and protected the U.S. lead.

Olympic Cage Teams Don't Like The Yellow Ball

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — Non-European nations complained vigorously Friday over the yellow ball to be used in the Olympic elimination basketball tournament from which five teams will be selected to complete a field of 16 for the games at Rome.

The 45-game tournament got under way Friday night with Canada edging Germany 61-60.

Complaints about the official, Italian-made ball called it "dead," difficult to dribble, collapses limply off the backboard and the deep ridges make it hard to control and tricky to shoot. It also was called too small.

In Haste Now Looms As Upset In Hambletonian

Du Quoin, Ill., — In Haste, fully living up to his name, upset all calculations involving the $150,000 Hambletonian Stake being raced August 31st at the State Fair here, by copping the American National Stake at Sportsman's Park, Chicago (night of August 9). The unexpected win of the colt that cost his owner $65,000 last fall has made the 35th Hambletonian wider open than ever.

Stanley Dancer, 33, who trains and races In Haste for Irving W. Berkemeyer, New Milford, N.J. who gave Two Gaits Farm, Indianapolis, $65,000 for the Kimberly Kid colt last fall as a result of his 2:02 3-5 mark set as a two-year-old, also has Volo Mon in his stable. As the latter has been first, second or third in 10 out of his 11 starts to date, he gives Stanley another strong string to his bow.

The upset victory of In Haste in one of the last three major previews to the August 31st classics at Du Quoin (the others are at Springfield, Ill., Aug. 18th and at Sedalia, Mo., Aug. 24th) matched the win of Hickory Fire, raced by Billy Haughton, at Wilmington, Del., late last week (Aug 5th), which also did its share of tossing the Hambletonian results into a spin.

Neither Berkemeyer or Bowman Brown, Hickory Fire's owner, Harrisburg, Pa., has ever won the Hambletonian. Neither has Dancer or Haughton, although both are highly ranked on the night raceway circuit. Volo Mon's owners, Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Derrico, Pelham Manor, N.Y., also have never won the coveted stake. Today it looks as though a brand new owner-driver team would capture the famed event.

Star Performer also did well by winning an elimination round at Sportsman's Park, with Mystery Song and Quick Song keeping in tune by finishing second to Star Performer and In Haste, respectively, in the intial rounds. Uncle Sam, well regarded earlier, broke and was scratched at Chicago.

Volo Mon, Elaine Rodney, Darcie, Hanover, Blaze Hanover and several other obviously tough Hambletonian entries to beat did not become involved in the Sportsman's Park upset. Anyone of them, therefore, or another outsider, of which there is certainly no shortage, may in the intervening, rapidly - shortening period, forge ahead to claim the favored role at Du Quoin on Hambletonian Day.

MAY MEET AT GAMES

GENEVA (AP) — Ingemar Johansson said Friday he might meet heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson in Rome during the Olympic Games and discuss their return fight for the world title.

Johansson, who has an apartment in Geneva, said he planned to go to Rome to see the Olympics. Patterson, currently on an exhibition tour in Sweden, is also expected to be in Rome at the end of this month.

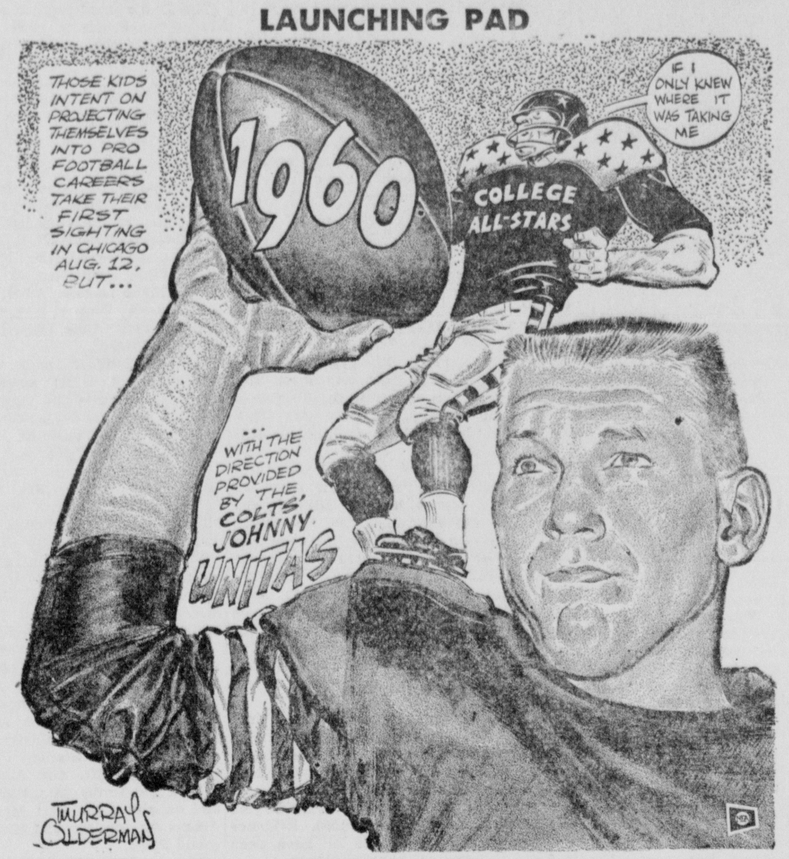
WINOOSKI PARK, Vt. (AP) — The New York football Giants have placed rookie John Moses on the injured reserve list and released him from camp here at St. Michael's College.

Moses, whose right knee ligaments were torn in Saturday's intra-squad game, requested permission to return to his Kendallville, Ind., home and accept a high school coaching position.



Phillies Thump Chicago, 10-6

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pancho Herrera's double, followed by Tony Gonzalez' home run gave Philadelphia four of the five runs it scored in a wild seventh inning Friday night for a 10-6 victory over Chicago.

With one away in the Phillies' big inning, John Callison tripled and Tony Taylor walked. Don Elston replaced Cub starter Glen Hobbie and made a wild throw to first trying to catch Taylor, permitting Callison to score the tying run. Tony Curry then got first base on interference when Cub catcher Moe Thacker inadvertently tipped the bat with his glove. Herrera's double brought in Taylor and Curry and Gonzales' homer scored Pancho.

The Phillies added two more in the eighth on Curry's two-run homer.

Pale Hose Score Six Runs In Sixth Inning To Beat Athletics, 6-4

CHICAGO (AP)—The White Sox, held scoreless in their previous 17 innings, erupted for six runs in a wild sixth inning Friday and defeated the Kansas City A's 6 to 4.

Eleven Sox went to the plate in the big inning as they routed starter Bud Daley and continued their assault against Ned Garver. The victory went to Bob Shaw, who tamed the A's for the fourth time this year and the 10th consecutive time without a defeat since he joined the Sox in 1958. Daley had defeated the Sox three times this season.

Gene Freese launched the Sox victory drive with a double and scored when Al Smith also doubled. Luis Aparicio singled to score Smith and went all the way to third when Bill Tuttle let the ball get away in center.

After Sherm Lollar fanned, Aparicio was trapped off third but scampered back to the bag safely. Shaw then walked and Jim Landis singled, scoring Aparicio. When Nellie Fox was hit by a pitch, Garver replaced Daley.

Garver walked Roy Sievers to force in a run and leave the bases loaded. Minnie Minoso singled to left to drive in the last two runs.

Consecutive singles by Danny Kravitz, Tuttle and Ken Hamlin finally produced a Kansas City run in the fourth. Norm Siebern's 17th homer and a triple by Danny Kravitz scored two more in the eighth. They added another off Gerry Staley, who pitched the ninth.

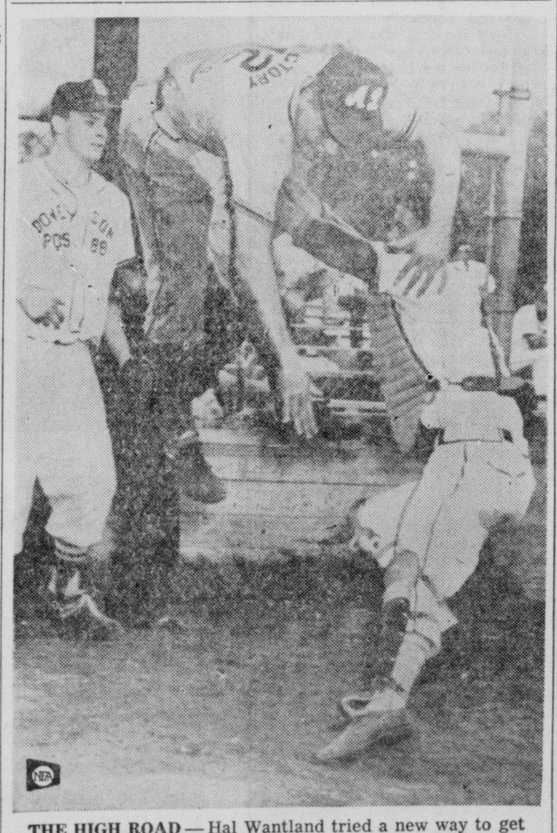
Boston Of Tennessee A&I Breaks Jess Owens' Broad Jump Record

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) — Ralph Boston of Tennessee A&I made track history Friday night by breaking Jesse Owens' 25-year-old world broad jump record with a leap of 26 feet, 11¼ inches.

Owens' record, 26-8¼ was the oldest on the books. Owens set it at Ann Arbor, Mich., May 25, 1935.

Boston, whose best previous jump was 26-6½, went over 26 feet four times Friday night before breaking the record.

His historic leap came just about an hour after Hal Connolly broke his own world hammer throw record with a throw of 230 feet, 9 inches.



THE HIGH ROAD — Hal Wantland tried a new way to get around the catcher and score in an American Legion game in Nashville. Larry Sullivan was having none of Wantland's acrobatics, however, and waited until Hal started descending to put the tag on him for the out. Good try, though.

Grid Writers Elect Olderman New President

CHICAGO (AP) — The Football Writers Assn., of America Friday elected Murray Olderman, Newspaper Enterprise Assn., New York, as president. He succeeds Furman Bisher of the Atlanta Journal.

Other new officers included Jerry Liska, Chicago Associated Press, first vice president; Bert Mc Grane, Des Moines Register & Tribune, second vice president; Maury White, Des Moines Register & Tribune, secretary-treasurer; and Sid Hartman, Minneapolis Star-Tribune, secretary.

In the annual press box report, the grid writers adjudged that Navy had the most improved press box for 1959, and the worst press boxes were at Birmingham, Ala., Legion Field; Tennessee University; Georgia University; University of Illinois; and Crum Stadium at Memphis, Tenn.

The writers awarded a citation for meritorious service to Don Faurot, retired coach and president athletic director at Missouri.

SUN RAYS LIGHT OLYMPIC TORCH FOR LONG JOURNEY

OLYMPIA, Greece (AP) —Lighted by the rays of the sun, the Olympic flame Friday began its long journey to Rome from this ancient Greek birthplace of the Olympics.

Runners and a sailing vessel will carry the flame to the Italian capital, where the 1960 games open Aug. 25.

In a solemn ceremony at this shrine full of memories of the earliest Olympics, a Greek woman, dressed in the robes of an ancient priestess, held a magnifying glass in front of a torch.

The flame is expected to arrive in Athens Saturday night. Then runners will carry the torch to Piraeus where the flame will be taken aboard the Italian naval training ship Amerigo Vespucci to be sailed to Siracusa.

From the Sicilian port of Siracusa other relays of runners will carry the flame the 950 miles to Rome. The torch is expected to arrive in Rome Aug. 24.

GOOD YEAR FOR LOST KIDS

PITTSBURGH (AP)—With the Pittsburgh Pirates fighting for the National League pennant, more children are getting lost at Forbes Field than usual.

"At the rate we're going, the number of children who become separated from their parents will be up about 100 per cent," says Art McKennan, the public address announced. "Normally, I have to make about 50 such announcements during a season, and I've made just about that many already this year." Pirate home attendance is running 177,066 ahead of last year.

HARD WAY EAGLE

DENVER (AP)—Scott Hayden Jr., a 15-year-old golfer, got his eagle on the par five 572-yard 18th at the Denver Country Club without hitting a shot of less than 170 yards.

That was the distance covered by his tee shot. He used a 2-wood for his second and got 210 yards. Then Scott peeled out his 3-wood and hit one 192 yards and into the cup.

DENVER DOGS PROFIT

DENVER (AP)—The Mile High Kennel Club opened its 12th season of greyhound racing with another betting record anticipated. The wagering area has substantially increased since last summer when a new high of $18,819,963 was set for 60 nights.

Bobby Corle, a former Bedford, Pa., High School wrestling champion at 95 pounds, led Pimlico's jockeys last spring with 13 winners in 12 days.

Dave Budd, Wake Forest basketball captain last season, will play with the New York Knickerbockers this season.

Persons born in June have their choice of three birthstones—pearl, alexandrite or moonstone.

QB Unitas Hurls 3 Touchdown Passes For Victorious Colts

CHICAGO (AP) — Unerring Johnny Unitas hurled three touchdown passes to Lenny Moore, pacing the relentless Baltimore Colts to a 32-7 victory over a game, stubborn College All-Star team before 70,000 in Soldier Field Friday.

The 27th All-Star game almost duplicated last year's 29-0 triumph by the champion Colts of the National Football League over the cream of the collegiate crop.

Although the Colts surged to a 24-0 halftime margin, Coach Otto Graham's All-Stars made a brave show of it and finally scored in the opening seconds of the fourth period on a pass play covering 60 yards from Southern Methodist's Don Meredith to Oklahoma's Prentice Gautt.

Unitas, who left the game with Baltimore ahead 26-0 late in the third period, completed two three-yard scoring passes, and one 13-yard touchdown toss to fleet halfback Moore.

The pros also got a 12-point contribution from kicking expert Steve Myhra, who booted three field goals — two measuring 27 yards and one 38—and converted after all three Colt touchdowns.

Two more Baltimore points came when Notre Dame's George Izo was nailed for a safety in the third quaretr.

It was the 17th pro triumph against 8 collegiate victories and 2 ties in the midsummer grid spectacle sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

The Colts, however, suffered a blow when ace offensive lineman Jim Parker's left hand was broken early in the third quarter.

The collegians never quit, even though they failed to get any sustained offense clicking other than Meredith's payoff pitch to Gautt and the ex-Mustang's consistent tosses to end Gail Cogdill of Washington State.

Gautt's touchdown came after he snagged a Meredith pass of about 10 yards and then scooted 50 yards to score after a great key block by North Caroline tackle Don Stallings. Mississippi's Bob Khayat added the extra point.

U.S. Plan Of Using Helicopter Throws Italians Into A Tizzy

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ROME (AP)—Plans for a U.S. airlit to the rowing site at Lake Albano brought new complications Friday to advance organizing for the Olympic Games, already plagued by bitter political bickering.

Charles Ornstein of New York, U.S. Olympic committeeman in charge of the team's food and welfare, caused a mild sensation when he said he hoped to have the 35 rowers transported daily by U.S. Marine helicopter from the Olympic Village to the lake 15 miles south.

The organizing committee said Ornstein had made no formal request for the airlift but unofficially the Italians were thrown into a nervous tizzy.

"This would create many problems," said one official. "We cannot have helicopters buzzing over the village all day. And, furthermore, if the Americans do it, why not the others?"

As the pace of advance preparations for the big international quickened, these were other top developments:

1. Stuart MacKenzie, the young sculler from Australia who was regarded as a gold medal certainty, put in a surprise appearance at Olympic Village and said it wasn't definite that his bleeding ulcers would force him out of competition.

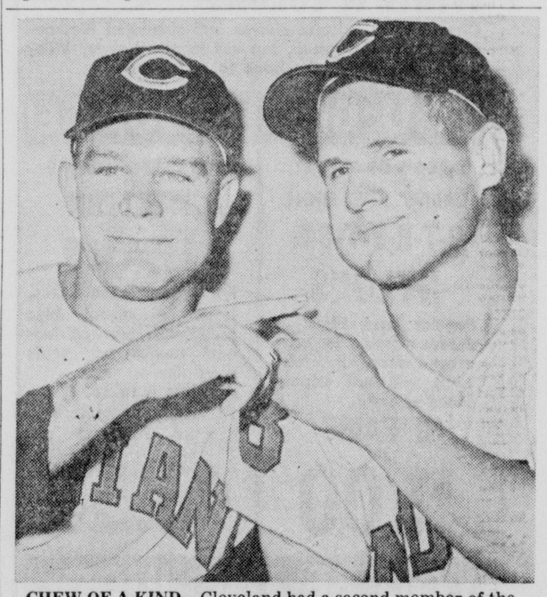
2. Gert Potgieter of South Africa, world record holder for the 440-yard hurdles, was declared definitely out. He will spend several weeks in a hospital from the broken upper jaw and other injuries received in an automobile accident two nights ago.

3. The Olympic torch was lighted by the rays of the sun on ancient Olympia and was sent speeding toward Rome by marathon runners. The flame is to arrive in time for the opening ceremony Aug. 25.

4. Italy's Communists stepped up their Olympic battle against the Roman Catholic Church by pasting up three-foot posters on city walls charging "clerical interference with the Olympics."

5. Delegations from Japan, Pakistan, the Philippines, Colombia and Ethiopia joined the early list of arrivals in the village, which by late next week will be sheltering nearly 8,000 athletes.

6. Competition opened in the pre-Olympic basketball tournament at Bologna where 18 teams vie for five places.



CHEW OF A KIND—Cleveland had a second member of the rapidly-vanishing bulging cheek fraternity when Rocky Bridges, right, joined Harvey Kuenn and the Indians. The former Detroit Tigers give the tobacco-chewing sign.

THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS—Curt Flood scores from first base on Hal Smith's double at Busch Stadium. Del Crandall of the Milwaukee Braves gets the ball too late to tag the Cardinals' fleet center fielder. Julian Javier, the second baseman who put the breath of life back into the Red Birds, makes sure Umpire Vinnie Smith calls the play correctly.

THE WOLF THAT RODE

By Nelson Nye
© Nelson Nye 1960 Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

THE STORY: Brett Fasken has returned home to find his sister Jo Fasken, owner of the Hobbled O, playing the part of a range hog in a fight for control of a cattle empire. He learns that Jo is planning to outlaw Trone, a small rancher, and brother of pretty, yellow-haired Lola Trone.

McInery came back and handed up the morral. "Dollar twenty. Take it wi' ye."

Brett passed him the silver. The roan, swinging his head around, nickered for the oats. Brett, still considering McInery, kept the bag out of his reach. "What's chewin' you, Mac?"

"If a man needed reason you're reason enough," a harsh voice exclaimed behind Brett through a metallic chinging of spurs. "You just can't keep out of trouble, can you!"

Brett, twisting around, found Tice's stare blackly gouging him. There had always been this quality to the man, a quietness that—to Brett, at least—bordered on insolence, a kind of overbearing assurance that went beyond the rights of a ramrod as though whatever Bill Tice chose to say or think transcended dispute and was—for other men—law.

It had always rubbed Brett the wrong way, whipping up his own intolerance. Now it made him say with calculated malice, "Oh—that you, Tice?" and turn his back indifferently to look again at McInery. "Thought maybe you might know of someone needin' a good hand with their horse stock."

Through McInery's silence Brett heard the hard tramp of the Hobbled O segundo's boots coming at him. Not until the man had practically reached his stirrup did Brett give any sign that he knew of Tice's fury. Turning then, he said, "What's chewin' you?"

"There's no jobs here and if there was you wouldn't get 'em—you understand that? Jo don't want you around. I don't want you around, either. Now if you've got any sense—"

"I never did have," Brett grinned. "Ask Mac."

He got out his tobacco. Tice, lunging forward, batted it out of his hand. Brett shook a boot loose. Tice jumped back and whipped out his gun. His eyes dared Brett to start something.

Brett softly laughed. "Well," he said to the liveryman, picking up his reins, "expect I better be siftin' along."

"You better be sifting right out of this country," Tice told him, ugly, "if you want to keep healthy."

Brett said to McInery, "Might be Trone could use a extry hand. Hear he's got some stuff needs gentlin'."

The Scott, blank of face, kept his jaws hard shut, but the eyes of Josephine's segundo blazed with uncontrollable hatred. He was a man who could not endure resistance. His heavily mustached face suddenly darkened with fury. "Do that," he said, "and you're dead," and stamped away from them.

* * *

Some hundred rods from the livery Brett got out of the saddle in a vacant lot across from the Coffin Bar and, removing his gear, curried the horse with that unflagging zeal a man mostly shows when in a spirit of penance he attempts belatedly to make up for something. Then he gave the horse the oats and sucked his pipe while he waited.

The night was still hot. No breeze came out of the shadows to relieve the oppressive closeness of the air. It carried the smell of scorched earth, reminding Brett of the drought and of his sister's alleged plans; and thinking of these things he caught the drift of sounds coming past the blaze of the Rochester lamps that brightened every opening of the honkytonk yonder. guitar sounds and fiddle squeals with an occasional isolated voice cutting through them.

The place was too still. There was no jostle of movement beyond the bright oblongs of undraped windows, no crowd at the bar. Brett took a long look around and with a grunt of impatience bent and picked up the blanket, shaking it irascibly before dropping it and smoothing it into place behind the horse's withers. He saddled up, took off the bag, rebitted the roan, and got aboard. "Grass won't grow," he told the horse, "if you stand on it," and, suddenly snorting, he put the animal into the near-empty street.

* *

He didn't have to look long before he found what he was hunting. Most of the rigs and tied horses were congregated about the schoolhouse. He walked the roan in that direction. This wasn't what he wanted but it was plain he wouldn't be let alone around here. This thing he had made up his mind to probably wasn't the best choice but he had to get some of this bunch off his neck.

There was a pretty fair crowd, mostly punchers and townsmen, in the Red Wall. But here too, as at the Coffin Bar, there seemed considerably less noise than was natural. There were still a few wagons at the Mercantile, but what customers he could see were all women. His mouth drew in a bit more at the corners and he wondered if perhaps he hadn't better strap on his gun. But this was not the time or the place for guns. The last thing Brett wanted was to have to kill anyone.

He had thought coming back here was going to make a free man of him. He wondered now if anyone ever was truly free. Then he put these thoughts away from him, his attention swinging out of habit to the heaviest patches of shadow, the door holes and alleys, the indeterminate sounds coming out of the night.

State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company is cutting over $2,750,000 from its Illinois policyholdres' annual auto insurance bill through a new driver classification plan.

Hudson L. Thompson and Don Hazelrigg, local agents for State Farm, said most of the firm's 400,000 policyholders in Illinois will qualify for rate reductions.

They cited increased traffic safety measures in the state as contributing to the reduced accident costs which have made the rate cut possible.

Savings will vary, they said, depending upon how individual drivers fit into the new driver classification plan being introduced here by State Farm. Biggest rate cuts will go to motorists whose cars have no single male drivers under 25, who don't use their cars for business and who don't drive far to work.

Although some drivers—particularly single males under 25—will get rate increases under the plan, the net effect will be an estimated $2,750,800 reduction in State Farm's annual premium income from its present policyholders in Illinois. Statewide, the decreases average 6.8 percent.

Thompson and Hazelrigg said additional savings for many two-car families may result from pyramiding of second car and compact car discounts. Formerly either of the discounts, but not both, was allowed.

Some policyholders will pay more for bodily injury and property damage liability coverages, but reductions in comprehensive and collision coverage costs may more than offset this allowing an overall reduction in their premium. But even with full coverage policies, some policyholders who drive long distances to work will be faced with a slightly higher total premium.

State Farm Mutual, which estimates it insures nearly one out of eight (12.4 percent) of the passenger cars registered in Illinois, is the world's largest auto insurer with nearly 6,000,000 policies in force. Home office and the midwest regional office which serves Illinois policyholders are in Bloomington.

Hudson L. Thompson and Don Hazelrigg's office is at Illinois Theatre Bldg., Northeast corner square, Jacksonville, Ill.—CH 5-6370 — CH 5-9460.

REASON TO BARK

SILER CITY, N. C. (AP)— When Mr. and Mrs. Percy Sheppard's hound dog, "Crybaby," gave birth to 17 puppies, they began checking to see if it was a record.

If so, it was broken the next day when two more were born. Hound dog experts here agreed that if it isn't a record, it's close to it.
